

HALIFAX NAMED AMBASSADOR TO U. S.; EDEN IS RETURNED TO FOREIGN OFFICE

Slayer of Trooper Eludes Fourth Trap; Pursuers Near Enough 'To Hear Him'

Fatigued Dogs Drop as Posse Is Closing In

Pursuers Secure New Hounds and Take Up Trail Again.

Relentless Georgia Highway Patrolmen last night doggedly pushed into their third day's manhunt for the wounded killer of their brother officer, Sergeant W. Fred Black, after narrowing the gap close enough "to hear him running" in a wooded mountain area near Decatur, Tenn.

Commissioner Lon Sullivan, of the state patrol, who is personally directing the search, described the fugitive killer as "the luckiest escape alive." He has eluded three makeshift traps and got away a fourth time last night when bloodhounds, hot on the murderer's trail, dropped from the exhaustion of the hunt.

Patrolmen heard the fugitive running off through the thick-wooded area when the dogs fell from the hunt, Commissioner Sullivan reported.

"We've just got new dogs from Georgia and are on the trail again," Sullivan said about 11 o'clock last night. "We believe he is heading for Rhea county where there is a report he has relatives. We hope to nab him before morning."

The State Highway Patrol office here reported that Trooper John Goodwin, of the Villa Rica, Ga., station, accidentally was shot in the arm by a shotgun last night while engaged in the hunt. He was carried to an Athens, Tenn., hospital where his condition was described as "not serious."

Captain A. L. Hutchins, of the state patrol identification bureau, said last night the woman abandoned by the killer at the murder scene near Ringgold Friday night had identified the trooper's slayer as her husband of five days and as Charles C. Coates, an escaped life-terminer from St. Joseph, Mo., prison.

The girl, who gave her name as Letha Pauline Brinsbine, 21, of Kansas City (prior to her marriage to Coates), was not the woman who aided Coates escape from prison. He said a report had got out that she had confessed as being that woman, but this was not true. Captain Hutchins said the girl's story told Saturday of being picked up in Kansas City by Coates December 12 checks substantially with that told by her parents as to when she left home. After checking all angles, Captain Hutchins said he was positive that the girl was not connected with the prison break in Missouri.

Girl Facing Death Gets Chance From Atlanta Employes' Union

Opportunity No. 14 To Get Special Diet She Needs Badly.

By FRANK DRAKE

A 19-year-old girl, who was facing death for lack of proper food, has been given a chance at life during 1941 by the Atlanta City Employes' Union, Local No. 4. The union has "adopted" Opportunity No. 14, and will give Alice E. $15 a month for a special diet she needs which her own family cannot afford.

Thus another of your Christmas Opportunity families is assured of help and given the greatest of Christmas gifts—but today the stories of Opportunity Families No. 22 and 23 appear and yes—

Paul Donehoo, Blind Coroner, Succumbs Here Unexpectedly

SUCCUMBS HERE—Coroner Paul Donehoo, blind since childhood and coroner of Fulton county for 32 years, died suddenly yesterday. With him is his wife, who was helped both at home and at his office, where she served as his assistant.

Brilliant Official Was Musician, Sports Fan, Chess Player.

By BILL HART.

Paul Donehoo, blind coroner of Fulton county for 32 years and one of the most brilliant, best known and best loved men ever to hold office in Fulton county, died unexpectedly yesterday morning at his residence, 133 Huntington road. He was 55 years old.

Coroner, musician, and lawyer, master chess player and sports fan, his death brought to a close a life that had been devoted to relieving the sufferings of those afflicted as himself and not so fortunate.

Possessor of one of the most brilliant of minds, his prodigious memory had achieved a national reputation and his memory feats were known throughout the country.

He became coroner of Fulton county when he was 21 and served until his death. He was sworn in to begin his fourth year term only last Friday. A native of Fulton county, he was born in 1885 near Adamsville. When he was five and a half years old, he was afflicted with spinal meningitis that left him totally blind.

At the age of six, he was sent

T. H. Morgan, Who Designed Skyline, Dies

Planned More Downtown Buildings Than Any Other Man.

Thomas H. Morgan, the man who moulded the skyline of downtown Atlanta, died yesterday. He was 83 years old.

The dean of Georgia architects, during more than a half century he had designed more of the city's downtown buildings than any other man and the skyline of the Gate City of the South stands today as a living memorial to his work.

He was born in Knoxville, Tenn., attended the University of Tennessee, studied architecture in St. Louis, and came to Atlanta as a youth in 1878.

Began as Draughtsman. When he arrived in the town that still was rebuilding from the ruin left by Sherman, there were but three architects and one draughtsman. He was that draughtsman.

He first joined the firm of Perkins & Bruce and was put to work designing the downtown office structures that were rapidly arising in the bustling young city. He continued in that field until his retirement 10 years ago.

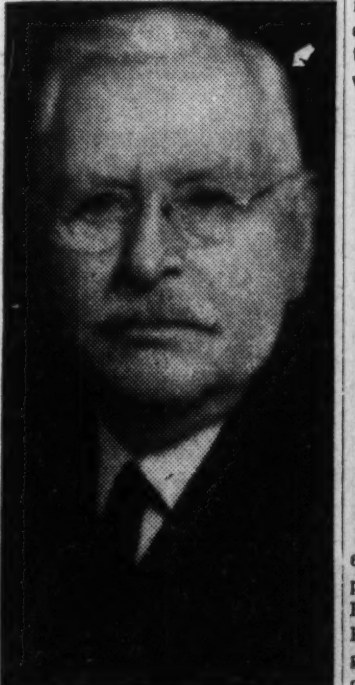

During his long career, he designed the majority of the city's downtown office structures, including the old Fourth National Bank building, now the First National Bank; the Citizens and Southern National Bank building; the Third National Bank building; the 22 Marietta Street building; the Austell building, now the Ten Forsyth Street building; Oglethorpe University; the Retail Credit Company building; the Healey building, many of the earlier buildings at Agnes Scott College; the Fulton county courthouse; the Atlanta National Bank building; the Chamberlin-Johnson Store building, and the J. P. Allen & Company building.

Short Illness. During successive years, the firm with which he had begun his business career became Bruce & Morgan, Morgan & Dillon, and Morgan, Dillon & Lewis.

He had been seriously ill only a day and died in the home at 937 Peachtree street which he built 51 years ago for his bride.

Surviving are his wife, the former Miss Sarah Hyde, of Hydeville, Vt.; a daughter, Mrs. E. S. Lewis; two sisters, Mrs. Jesse Walker and Mrs. Eva West; and two grandchildren, Lieutenant Thomas Morgan Lewis and Miss Sarah Spalding Lewis.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

PIONEER DIES—Thomas H. Morgan, one of the city's first architects, died yesterday. He was the designer of many of the city's important downtown structures.

Shakedowns, If Any, Elusive at Hinesville

By HAROLD MARTIN,
Staff Writer.

HINESVILLE, Ga., Dec. 22.—It is pretty hard to figure out who is shaking down whom and for how much down here where Uncle Sam is spending nearly six million dollars to turn 365,000 acres of coastal flatland into a camp and training ground for 15,000 men of the anti-aircraft forces.

In fact, it is pretty hard to figure out whether there is any shakedown at all or not, for nobody seems to be much out of pocket except Uncle Sam, who agreed to pay the union scale of wages and found he had to use a lot of men whose skill is far below the union standard. In fact, there are some at work who consider the day well spent when they get by without mashing their thumb.

It is true, as has been reported in the press, that the unions of the Savannah Building and Construction Trades Council require the payment of an initiation fee, ranging from $9 for common laborers to $50 for skilled workmen. This applies to all men working on the project who were not union members when they went to work, and they refer to it, seemingly humorously, as "the shakedown."

It is not true, though, that a man can't go to work until he has paid this fee. He can go to work, if he is a laborer, by paying a dollar down and promising to pay three dollars a week until the $9 is paid.

He can go to work, if he is a skilled craftsman, if he pays $5.50 down and pays a dollar a day thereafter until his full

Pétain Refuses To Be Puppet, Vichy Reports

Believed To Be Defying Hitler Over Return to Paris.

VICHY, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Marshal Pétain is resisting Adolf Hitler's proposal that he return to Paris and is insisting upon "complete liberty of action" for the Vichy government, it was understood in French quarters tonight.

Pétain's attitude in the recent French-German discussions following the ouster of Pierre Laval as French vice premier were described here as leaving "no doubt that Pétain will not be a puppet."

Silent on Laval. Government spokesmen refused to comment on reports abroad that Hitler has demanded the reinstatement of Laval, now in Paris, as well as another shakeup in Pétain's cabinet to eliminate elements not inclined to enter into the fullest sort of collaboration with Germany.

(In Geneva the Swiss newspaper Le Suisse reported that Fernand de Brinon, the Vichy government's representative in Paris, had presented to Pétain a new set of German demands, but authorized spokesmen in Berlin said "nothing is known here" of any such development.)

(London reported a growing belief that Pétain was refusing to consent to Germany's use of French ports and the immobilized French fleet, consisting of approximately 100 warships.)

The question of Pétain's return either to Paris or Versailles to preside as chief of unoccupied France must be settled now that Pétain is undisputed head of the government, following the ouster of Laval.

The Germans want him to go to Paris. He has constantly insisted, however, on complete liberty of action and for this reason refused to go to Versailles while any German troops remained there.

Italy Executes Two in Huge Plot by Spies

23 Others Get Prison Terms; Taranto Link Suspected.

ROME, Dec. 22.—(P)—Discovery of a "network of informers" was revealed today when Aurelio Coccozza, described as a fake traveling salesman of Taranto, and Francesco Ghezzi, a navy quartermaster, were executed as spies at Fort Bravetta, near Rome.

The executions were carried out at dawn with the military dispatch and secrecy customary among nations at war, and the firing squad was back in barracks before there was even an official announcement of the trial.

This statement disclosed that 25 other persons also had stood trial as "members of a network of informers which acted in our country in the interest of a foreign power," and that only three were acquitted because of insufficient evidence. Those convicted were given prison sentences.

Some observers thought the case might have related to the British air raid on the Taranto naval base on November 11, when three Italian battleships were torpedoed and damaged.

The warning from the Italian end of the Rome-Berlin Axis was delivered by Virginio Gayda, often the spokesman for Premier Mussolini, in today's authoritative Voce D'Italia.

His warning was based on the same situation as that which brought Germany's strong words Saturday—the suggestion of British Minister of Shipping Ronald Cross that German and Italian ships tied up in United States ports be turned over to Britain.

Any United States submission to such a proposal, said Gayda, might plunge the United States into the war by provoking action under the Italo-German-Japanese tripartite pact, which binds the three powers to common action in event a power now neutral—the United States—should enter the war against either Germany or Italy or both.

Gayda said that "England may drag the United States into the conflict although the United States has every reason to keep out."

"In fact, it is difficult to imagine such underhanded North American intervention lasting for very long without facing complications as regards the Berlin tripartite pact."

Envoy Linked With Ministry Of Chamberlain

Is Known as 'Christian Gentleman' in British Politics.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 23.—(Monday)—Viscount Halifax, 59-year-old foreign secretary, well known as the "Christian gentleman in British politics," was named early today to succeed the late Marquess of Lothian as British ambassador to Washington.

War Secretary Anthony Eden, who was succeeded as foreign secretary by Lord Halifax when Eden resigned in February, 1938, after a disagreement with the late Neville Chamberlain over appeasement of Germany and Italy, was named to return to the foreign secretaryship. Eden is 43.

"Surprise" Appointment.

Captain David Margesson, 50, for nine years the government's chief whip in the house of commons was a "surprise" appointment as secretary of state for war to succeed Eden.

Halifax's appointment to Washington removed the last great figure in London's government who was associated closely with the late Neville Chamberlain in his appeasement policies before the war.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill had never questioned Halifax's integrity and ability in those bitter years, but had consistently attacked the policies of Chamberlain, as had Eden.

Quiet, Unassuming.

Halifax is known to Britons as a quiet, unassuming scholar and churchman, who rose from political obscurity in the early 1920s to become viceroy of India in 1926.

The Daily Mail, which predicted the Halifax and Eden appointments Saturday, said today that Sir Gerald Campbell, for many years British consul in New York, would be appointed minister to Washington to relieve Halifax of some of the detail work at the embassy.

The announcement also contained the King's intention of conferring the dignity of a barony of the United Kingdom upon the right honorable Viscount Cranborne.

It was understood the peerage was conferred on Viscount Cranborne in order to maintain a proper representation of the government in the house of lords, which would be lacking as a result of Halifax's transfer to the United States.

(U. S. is pleased with Halifax as ambassador. Story on Page 9.)

Secretary Knox Sends Yule Message to Fleet

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(P)—Secretary Knox, in a Christmas message to the fleet, declared today the Navy "pledges to the American people our vow to carry on steadily and conscientiously during the next year in accordance with the highest traditions" and to give the utmost to "the tasks that lie ahead."

Italy Warns Axis Will Bring Japan Into War Against U. S.

ROME, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Italy today followed up Germany's warning to the United States against committing any "war-like act" with an implied threat that the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact may be converted into armed action if more United States ships are transferred to Great Britain.

The warning from the Italian end of the Rome-Berlin Axis was delivered by Virginio Gayda, often the spokesman for Premier Mussolini, in today's authoritative Voce D'Italia.

His warning was based on the same situation as that which brought Germany's strong words Saturday—the suggestion of British Minister of Shipping Ronald Cross that German and Italian ships tied up in United States ports be turned over to Britain.

Any United States submission to such a proposal, said Gayda, might plunge the United States into the war by provoking action under the Italo-German-Japanese tripartite pact, which binds the three powers to common action in event a power now neutral—the United States—should enter the war against either Germany or Italy or both.

Gayda said that "England may drag the United States into the conflict although the United States has every reason to keep out."

Reds Reported Eight Persons Die in Crashes; Seeking Great Six Were From Same Family

Moscow Held To Believe Britain, Nazis Will Exhaust Selves.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(UP)—The Foreign Policy Association reported tonight that Soviet Russia's present policy is to protect its neutrality and at the same time reap the greatest possible benefits from simultaneous negotiations with Great Britain, Germany and the United States.

A study prepared by Vera Micheles Dean, expert on Russian affairs and director of the association's research department said, the Soviet probably is "more afraid of Germany today" than it was before the collapse of France.

But, it said, Moscow feels that Britain and Germany "will so exhaust each other that neither of them can be a threat to Russia for many years to come."

At Least Eight Others Injured in Train and Auto Accidents in Georgia; Highways Crowded With Homebound Christmas Traffic.

Eight persons, six of them members of the same Georgia family, were killed in automobile and train accidents yesterday as highways became crowded with homebound Christmas holiday traffic.

At least eight other persons were injured.

The dead were reported as:

C. P. Kiff, of near Oglethorpe, Georgia.

Mrs. Willie Bell Kiff, 39, his wife.

Betty Kiff, 9.

Jackie Kiff, 4.

Walter C. Hornsby Sr., the Kiffs' son-in-law.

Walter Hornsby Jr., 4 months.

Jean Chance, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chance, of Charleston, S. C.

Tommie Young, 27, of Worth county.

The Kiffs, their son-in-law and grandson, were killed at Flomaton, Ala., when their automobile crashed through a railroad overpass railing after a collision and plunged to the tracks, 35 feet below, state highway patrolmen reported.

Mrs. Walter C. Hornsby, 19, also a passenger in the Kiff car, miraculously escaped with minor injuries and was taken to a Century, Fla., hospital. Troopers E. H. Salter and H. G. Lee said the automobile driven by Hornsby and a pickup truck sideswiped each other on the overpass, the Hornsby driven car swerved and crashed through the railing. Three occupants of the truck were unhurt.

Mrs. J. W. Fleming, wife of the Flomaton, Ala., undertaker, where the bodies were taken, said the Kiffs and Hornsby were en route to Cutoff, La.

Baby Jean Chance was injured fatally in a head-on collision two miles south of Conyers on State Highway 12 about 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Seriously injured in this accident were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Chance, of Charleston, parents of the baby; Mr. and Mrs. H. C.

Hughes and their sons, Billy and H. C. Jr., who were riding in the same car. Irwin Cowan, 43, of Conyers, driver of the other vehicle, which was headed toward Covington, was injured critically. All injured were taken to Emory University hospital.

The Hughes and Chances, reported to have lived at the Charleston Navy Yard, were en route to Anniston, Ala., for the Christmas holidays, the state highway patrol reported.

Tommie Young, 27, member of a prominent family, was killed when struck by a train on the G. A. S. & C. railroad tracks at the Kelly street crossing in Sylvestor about 2:15 o'clock yesterday morning.

Italian Subs Raiding

In Atlantic, Nazis Say

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The German radio said today Italian long-distance submarines, based in the Atlantic and operating as far north as the Arctic ocean, have sunk more than 100,000 tons of shipping, "including a Canadian destroyer and the British tanker British Fame."

The broadcast, heard here by both CBS and NBC, quoted the Italian newspaper Corriere de la Serra as saying that "dozens" of the submarines were operating in the Atlantic in co-operation with the Germans.

Health Service Tells Sniffers To Go to Bed

Danger of Spreading 'Flu' Believed Greater in Early Stages.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(P)—The Public Health Service today advised everyone with the sniffles to go home and go to bed.

By doing so, it said, you may save your own life and help prevent the spread of influenza.

"It is believed that there is more danger of spreading the disease from persons in the early stages of 'flu' than from those ill enough to be in bed or those who are recovering," the service said in a statement.

"The persons who try to keep on their feet and 'stick it out' are those who contribute the greatest numbers to the death rolls."

There have been outbreaks of a mild type of influenza in several communities in the last few weeks.

The War Department, reporting the incidence among troops at Army stations was less than among civilians in near-by communities, attributed it to the regular life soldiers lead.

viewed that possibility as slim, since parliament—the chief sounding board for such a statement—is in recess.

The British sources said the statement could well follow the pattern of the country's religious leaders given in a letter to the Times and outlining what they called the only permanent basis for lasting peace.

Protestant and Roman Catholic leaders urged five standards "by which economic situations and proposals may be tested."

They were listed as follows:

1. Abolition of the extreme inequality of wealth and possessions.

2. Equal opportunities of education for every child.

3. The family as the social unit should be safeguarded.

4. A sense of divine vocation must be restored to man's daily work.

5. The earth's resources must be used as God's gift to the whole human race.

"We are confident the principles we have enumerated would be accepted by the rulers and statesmen throughout the British commonwealth of nations and be regarded as a true basis on which lasting peace could be established," the churchmen said.

They declared the "present evils in the world" are due to the failure of nations and peoples to carry out the laws of God.

Reds Predict Axis Reaction To War Gains

British Advances in Africa Called of 'Great Significance.'

MOSCOW, Dec. 22.—(P)—The Soviet press forecast sharp Axis reaction to British war gains in war reviews published today, but characterized invasion of England as an "exceptional difficulty."

The reviews appeared in the army and navy publications, Red Star and Red Fleet, and in the Communist party and labor union organs, Pravda and Trud.

"The successful British advance in North Africa is of great significance, not so much in the seizure of the territory as in considerable Italian losses which tangibly change the relation of the forces," Red Star commented.

Said Trud:

"The simultaneous Greek attack in Albania and that of the British in North Africa have complicated considerably Italy's position but the British success cannot yet be called a breaking-point of the war."

Discussing the possibility of an invasion of England, the trade union paper said that "under conditions of British mastery of the sea and uncrushed aviation, this is a task of exceptional difficulty . . . in general . . . one must come to the conclusion that no matter what methods of warfare the Germans employ the struggle will retain its drawn-out character."

Submarine Swordfish

Lost, British Announce

LONDON, Dec. 22.—(P)—The loss of the British submarine Swordfish was announced tonight by the admiralty, which said she was long overdue.

The Swordfish, for which a 640-ton class of submarine is named, was credited with having torpedoed and sunk a German torpedo boat off the French coast last October.

Submarines of her type usually carry a complement of 40 men.

Count Csaky Reported In a Critical Condition

BUDAPEST, Dec. 22.—(P)—Official quarters described the condition of Count Istvan Csaky, Hungarian foreign minister, as critical tonight.

He has been ill since December 15, when he was stricken aboard a train returning from Yugoslavia when he signed a friendship agreement between his government and Yugoslavia.

Juliana Hears Minister Pray For Her Nation

Overthrow of 'Tyranny That Despoils' Her Homeland Asked.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(P)—From a front pew of the West End Collegiate Reformed church, Princess Juliana of the Netherlands heard a prayer today for the overthrow of "the tyranny that despoils" her homeland.

With head bowed, the heir to the royal house of Orange sat with 1,800 worshippers who overflowed the church as the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Edgar Franklin Romig, prayed for the eventual "homecoming" of Queen Wilhelmina, the princess' mother, and other members of the royal family.

"And, according to Thy will," said Dr. Romig, "do Thou bring in the time when the tyranny that despoils their land shall be overthrown and the ancient privileges of their people shall be restored, and when all shall praise Thee for the restitution of their soil, the homecoming of their sovereign, and the vindication of the cause of civil and religious liberty for which, with all men of unfettered soul, they are struggling."

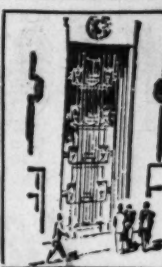

Siam Charges Territory Was Violated by French

BANGKOK, Thailand, Dec. 22.

(P)—The Thai (Siam) high command announced tonight that French regulars, including Moroccans, and guerillas "carried out an intensive violation of Thai territory Saturday night and early Sunday."

"After a sharp exchange of machinegun and rifle fire the enemy was repulsed everywhere," the communique added, saying that several French soldiers were killed and wounded but "there are no casualties on our side."

Graziani Tells Mussolini 'Why Italians Lost'

Mechanized Equipment Lacking; Mustn't Doubt Bravery, He Says.

ROME, Dec. 22.—(P)—Italian reversals in Egypt and Libya were blamed today by Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, in a report to Premier Mussolini, on the lack of armored cars, tanks and other mechanized equipment, which prevented the Fascists from taking the offensive before the British got started. The Italians were also outnumbered, he said.

These cars and other equipment were to have arrived from Italy early in December when the attack was planned. The British had been ordered by Mussolini and which was to have carried them, according to Italian plans, to Suez and the Nile.

First Explanation. Graziani's report was his first explanation of the British successes which opened two weeks ago and backed the Italians westward out of Egypt into Libya. He told Mussolini it would, "certainly be premature to forecast developments in the future fight" in Libya in which the British "have concentrated the best troops of four continents."

Graziani explained to Mussolini that the Fascists failed to start an offensive on Matruh, Egypt, early in December because they lacked armored cars, tanks and other mechanized equipment which had not arrived from Italy in due time.

(The British have maintained a blockade of the Italian lines of communication across the Mediterranean since the African campaign began.)

"Mustn't Doubt Bravery." If the number of prisoners taken by the British is high, Graziani told the Duce, it is because the Italians held out "to the last spasm," and Mussolini "must not doubt their bravery."

"Italian troops sacrificed themselves without sparing," he said. "I once more confirm to you categorically that everybody there has fulfilled his duty as far as possible."

To supply water in the occupied zone in Egypt, the marshal said, his troops built 72 miles of pipeline and road from Fort Capuzzo on the Libyan frontier to Sidi Barrani.

Some of the Italian units, he declared, marched hundreds of miles on foot, to economize on transport facilities, and were "burning for battle."

By the first day of December all the Italians lacked for the offensive was tanks and mechanized equipment they had ordered from home.

Terrible Gunfire. He said the British had an easy chance of employing masses of armored cars, supported by mobile guns, and their air force, against the Italian troop positions in the flat desert.

"After short but terrible gunfire and air bombardments, the armored cars came from everywhere, encircling our resistance centers which in some hours were overthrown," the marshal said.

But the Italians never gave way as long as they had a single cartridge to shoot, he said.

(Reports from British sources said last week hundreds surrendered with full equipment and many with loaded guns.)

WAR CLOUD IN PALESTINE—Smoke from burning oil tanks drifts over a mosque and cemetery in Haifa, Palestine, after a raid by Italian planes. British said 39 Moslems were killed and 58 wounded by bombs.

50,000 Italians Headed For Greeks' Trap

Heavy Losses Suffered in Counterattacks, Radio Says.

ATHENS, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Three Italian divisions, whose normal strength is about 50,000 men are being slowly locked in a mountain trap, under merciless Greek assaults from three sides, around the Albanian towns of Tepelini and Klisura, it was reported tonight in dispatches from the front.

The Italian lines around Khimara on the coast have collapsed and the Italians are fleeing northward in a desperate effort to throw up new defenses south of Valona base, about 20 miles above Khimara, it was stated by Greek quarters tonight.

Assaults Murderous. Murderous Greek artillery fire and bayonet assaults were said to have driven the Fascists from their mountain positions at Khimara.

The Greek radio said that "the fate of Tepelini and Klisura is sealed" and that the Italians had suffered heavy losses in men and materials in futile counter-attacks there and along the Adriatic coastal sector, aided by Fascist bombing planes.

United Press Correspondent Henry T. Gorrell, with the Greek army laying siege to Klisura, said the three Italian divisions were making a desperate stand around both Klisura and Tepelini after a retreat of more than 50 miles from the Greek-Albanian frontier at Leskovika.

Nazi Aid Arrives. (At Struga on the Yugoslav frontier it was reported that five German planes including an Stuka dive-bomber had arrived at Tirana Sunday to aid the Italians against the Greeks.)

Gorrell reported from the Tepelini-Klisura front—from a point between Klisura and Premeti—that the Italians have abandoned the fire-gutted town of Klisura and taken to the nearby dominating hills.

"After retreating for 12 days the three Italian divisions are attempting to regain their balance around Klisura while the Greeks batter them unmercifully from three sides," he reported.

Bombing Ineffective. "Italian planes are trying to cover the retreat northward of the Fascist forces but, for the most part, their bombing seems to be ineffective. The Italian fliers have tried repeatedly to bomb the road from Leskovika to Premeti, but, travelling over it, I saw only one real hit on the road itself, although well away from the highway itself were craters big enough to hold a huge truck."

"I saw the famous Italian retreat at Guadalajara during the Spanish war but this one is even greater."

Pierce fighting was waged throughout Sunday, according to advices reaching Athens, with the Greeks taking several new positions in the Klisura-Tepelini sector and along the coast south of Valona where reinforced Italian troops were said to be putting up heavy resistance.

The Greek radio said that on both the coastal and Tepelini-Klisura sectors the Greeks drove the enemy from "vital positions" and inflicted heavy Italian losses.

Thousands Mourn Death Of Ex-Finnish President

HELSINKI, Dec. 22.—(P)—Thousands of this capital's populace mourned today as the body of Finland's late president, Kyosti Kallio, was borne by horse-drawn artillery carriage to be taken to Nivala for burial.

Kallio, who broke his health leading Finland in the war with Soviet Russia last year, died Thursday in the arms of Baron Gustaf Mannerheim with the cheers of his people still in his ears. A few hours before, ill and tired at 67, he had turned his office over to Risto Rytty. He succumbed as he was bidding farewell to Helsinki and public life.

The cortege included a military procession in which Finnish generals, followed by Rytty and Baron Mannerheim, surrounded the artillery carriage.

Vichy Plotting With De Gaulle, Fascists Say

Why Do Colonies in Africa Vow Loyalty? Editor Asks.

ROME, Dec. 22.—(P)—Belief that the Vichy government of France is plotting with General Charles de Gaulle, leader of the "Free French" forces, to reunite French territories in Africa for resistance to "any eventual foreign intervention" was expressed today by the Italian magazine, Rassegna Italiana.

The magazine said the combination of French African possessions under the de Gaulle flag with British African territories would form a "gigantic bloc" which not only could help in defense of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan but also in an offensive on Italian territories.

"We must be vigilant that this bloc does not spread and absorb other territories of still more vital importance," Rassegna Italiana said.

Describing the situation in French Africa as "rather muddy" the magazine said "We don't know whether General Weyand (Chief of State Petain's representative in Africa) really refused to return to France, ignoring Vichy's orders, or whether he is actually acquainted with what is happening in French West Africa, French Morocco and districts in northern Africa at present controlled by France."

(General Weyand has made inspection trips to various French points in Africa and has been received ceremoniously at numerous points.)

"What do they mean by all these ceremonies accompanied by vows of loyalty . . . and crowned by unvarying assurances . . . that France will never yield an inch of her overseas territories?" Rassegna asked.

"We should not be at all surprised to read tomorrow that the two parts into which the great French African empire is at present divided have joined to the last against any eventual foreign intervention."

1 Killed, Another Hurt In CAA Plane Crashes

WARWICK, R. I., Dec. 22.—(P) Gilbert B. Kornstein, 19, of Woonsocket, was killed and Millard McInnis, 26, of Barrington, was slightly injured when the airplanes they were piloting as students under the CAA training program, crashed at 1,000 feet over the state airport at Hillsboro this morning.

British Trap Bardia Base by Land and Sea

Fascists Wage Artillery Duel; Attackers To Bide Time.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 22.—(P)—Although there still were no signs that Marshal Rodolfo Graziani was sending help to his beleaguered Italian garrison in Bardia, British troops continued today to mass around the Libyan seaport which has been under siege now for six days.

Today, however, brought little other change in the situation, military sources indicated. British batteries, placed along the 17-mile perimeter of the town, continued to pound the Italian defenses and the Fascists replied.

(In London, an air ministry news service report on north African air operations told of attacks on the Libyan bases of Bengasi and Berka. At Bengasi, it said, explosions were touched off on the jetty and two fires were seen near warships there; at Berka, grounded Italian aircraft were machinegunned from a height of 500 feet.)

The British have cut all lines into Bardia, which has been surrounded completely — by land forces on the desert and British warships at sea—for three days. The Italians are said to have plentiful food and ammunition and, it is believed, probably can hold out for some days if the British do not attack.

An actual assault on the town's defenses, military sources say, is likely to come when the British consider themselves sufficiently strong to take the town without big losses and after intense artillery and air bombardment.

The pause around Bardia has benefited the British, principally by enabling them to improve their communication lines with their bases, now 150 miles to the rear in the western desert.

ENTERS RACE.
CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Dec. 22. C. L. Collins Jr., young Cartersville business man, has announced his candidacy for ordinary of Bartow county to succeed the late Judge R. M. Gaines. A special election will be held January 20 to choose his successor.

LICENSED SANTONE CLEANERS
Cleans Suits and Dresses LIKE NEW and here's why
... because the Santone cleaning fluid is a special exclusive solvent which gently and surely dissolves grease and stains and removes dirt from clothes without harming or drying the natural life and lustre out of the fibers or fabric.

Clothes Are Re-Shaped
... not just a pressure pressing or pounding a crease in with an iron—but an actual re-shaping of garments on specially designed machinery, like that used in garment factories for new clothes, makes Briarcliff Santone-cleaned clothes like new.

When Does Clothing Need Cleaning?
1. When it is soiled, spotted or stained.
2. Even though it might show no soil or stain, it needs cleaning when an oil-soaked body odor is picked up by garments worn repeatedly and are absorbed and retained.
3. Practically every time a garment shows signs of pressing—it is better to have it cleaned than to have it pressed. The reason is simple—since suits and dresses are pressed irreparably when the heat of pressing causes the acids in the perspiration and soil that set in the garment to set up in the cloth so that they can never be removed.

F.S. Fitzgerald, Scenarist, Dies Of Heart Attack

44-Year-Old Author Wrote 'This Side of Paradise.'

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—(AP)—F. Scott Fitzgerald, novelist, short story writer and scenarist, died at his Hollywood home yesterday. He was 44.

Fitzgerald, author of "This Side of Paradise," came to Hollywood in 1937. He adapted his "The Great Gatsby" for the screen, did the scenario for Erich Remarque's "Three Comrades" and other film work.

He suffered a heart attack three weeks ago.

"This Side of Paradise" appeared in 1920 when Fitzgerald was 24, a year after he left the U. S. Army. He had quit Princeton University in his senior year to go into service as a second lieutenant in the 45th infantry.

The hero, Amory Blaine, of "This Side of Paradise," was somewhat a composite of "all the sad young men" of the unsettled post-war "flapper" era and the novel became a sort of social document, in critical estimation.

The term "all the sad young men" was employed six years later as the title of a Fitzgerald short story collection.

Acclaimed for his first novel, Fitzgerald soon wrote "Flappers and Philosophers." Then came "The Beautiful and Damned" in 1922.

At 26, Fitzgerald was in "Who's Who," listed as a Socialist in politics.

Fitzgerald married Zelda Sayre, daughter of an Alabama supreme court justice, in 1920. They have one daughter, Frances Scott Fitzgerald.

After word of his death was telegraphed to Mrs. Fitzgerald at Montgomery, Ala., arrangements were made to send his body to Baltimore, his family home, for burial.

Fitzgerald's sister-in-law, Mrs. Newman Smith, lives at 1327 Peachtree street, in Atlanta. She moved there two years ago from Montgomery, Ala.

MRS. RUBY COOK. INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruby Cook, 19, who had a baby in an iron lung died in one today.

The young woman, wife of Farmer Justus Cook, of Darlington, Ind., gave birth to a boy last August 28 while in a similar apparatus, because of paralyzed chest muscles. Her child died next day, but she recovered enough to be taken October 31 to stay with her parents, near Ladoga, Ind.

FRANKLIN UNDERWOOD. NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—Franklin Underwood, 63, prominent in the theatrical profession for years, died today following an operation.

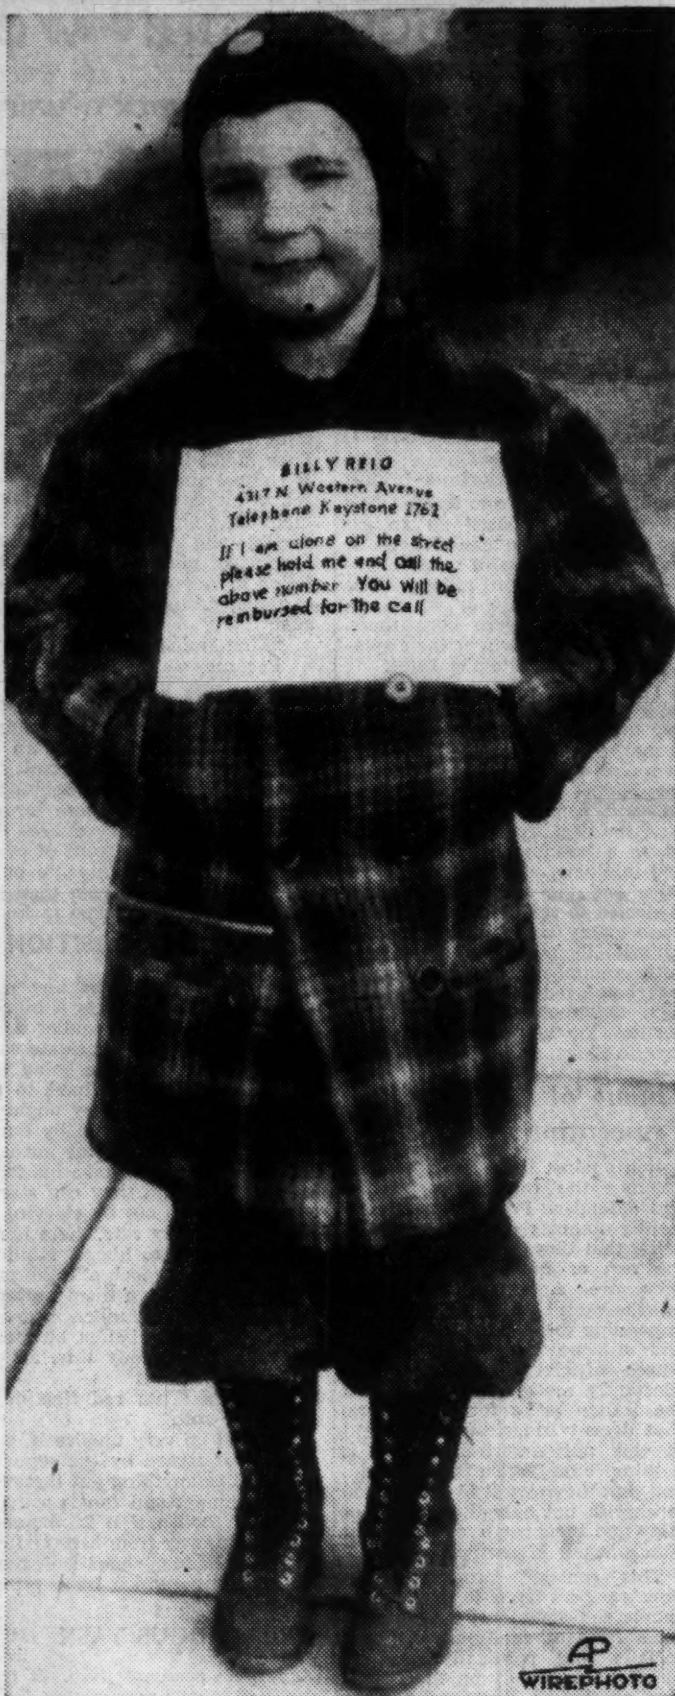

For the last 10 years Underwood had been story editor for 20th Century-Fox Films Corporation.

When you take your trusty typewriter in hand and start on that short story, playlet, movie scenario, or other piece of writing that you have always wanted to do, you'll find the "Writers' Packet" just what you need as "first aids."
The packet contains:
1. "Markets for Literature" booklet.
2. "Short Story Writing" bulletin.
3. "Writing for Stage and Screen" bulletin.
Of course they won't make a successful writer out of you, unless you have the capacity for writing. But if you are ambitious to "enter the writing game," these publications will give you much basic information and many useful suggestions on ways of turning the talent you may have into the most useful channels.
Send the coupon below for your packet:

HOME NOW AND TAGGED—Billy Reid, 5-year-old explorer of Chicago, returns home from his latest expedition. He boarded an elevated train but a guard put him off and notified police. Although Billy was without his usual name and address sign which he wears here, police knew him from his previous explorations and returned him home.

Previously he was general manager of the Oliver Morosco Theatrical projects.

ADAM D. ETHERIDGE. MANTEO, N. C., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Adam D. Etheridge, 68, one of the three surviving men who helped the Wright brothers in their first pioneering flight at Kill Devil Hill, died here today. He was a retired Coast Guardsman.

W. H. MARTIN. OTTAWA, Kas., Dec. 22.—(AP)—W. H. Martin, 75, photographer who made a fortune on trick prints depicting enormous rabbits and farm products, died today. He sold throughout the nation cards showing hunters carrying huge rabbits and farmers hauling pumpkins as large as the wagon.

THOMAS ATCHISON. MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Funeral will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow for Thomas Atchison, 50, state apiarist and well-known authority on the bee and honey industry.

REV. HENRY M. WARREN. CHAPPAQUA, N. Y., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Rev. Henry M. Warren, 80, who spent 34 years dissuading persons from committing suicide, died today.

Founder of the Save-a-Life League, the minister quit a Manhattan pulpit to lead his crusade.

U. S. Relief Cases Here Show Drop
Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Atlanta cases receiving federal relief totaled 2,566 during November, a decrease of four per cent from October, it is revealed in a summary by the Federal Security Agency.
The city's obligations incurred for relief also showed a decrease for November, the total being $20,941, or three per cent less than the October figure. Both decreases were greater than the average of 114 urban areas covered by the FSA survey.

Atlanta Boys' Club To Celebrate Yule
Santa Claus is not forgetting the 300 youths affiliated with the Atlanta Boys' Club.
At 12:30 o'clock today the boys will attend the Paramount theater as the guests of E. E. Whitaker, after which they will be treated to a turkey dinner at the S. & W. Cafeteria by the Salvation Army and the cafeteria.
The annual Christmas party will be held at 7 o'clock tomorrow night at the club. There will be gifts, fruits, nuts and candy for all. Dr. Louie D. Newton, pastor of the Druid Hills Baptist church, will be the principal speaker.

Trousers To Be Made Here for U. S. Army
Contract for the manufacture of 50,000 pairs of denim working trousers has been awarded by the War Department to Nunnally & McCrea, of Atlanta, on their contract price of $43,282.50. The award did not specify any delivery date.
Other Georgia firms receiving contracts follow: Union Manufacturing Company, Union Point, 78,000 pairs tan cotton socks, $9,872.40; Classic City Overall Company, Athens, 70,000 pairs denim working trousers, $58,100.

$63,440 Is Paid Benning Soldiers

FORT BENNING, Ga., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Fort Benning's enlisted men have $63,440 to spend during the Christmas holidays.

This represents a partial December payday for 58 units of the 4th Division, issued on the eve of holiday leaves for 80 per cent of Benning's 11,000 soldiers. The division's regular December payroll will be made January 3, making the month's outlay total about $200,000 for enlisted personnel. Pay to commissioned officers will lift the division's December total to about $250,000, highest since the division was reactivated last summer.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 23, 1940.

To Speed Defense

President Roosevelt took a step for which the entire country has been anxiously waiting when he appointed a new defense organization, an office for production management, with William S. Knudsen as head of the four-man group. Other members are Secretaries Stimson and Knox, of war and navy, and Sidney Hillman, in charge of labor problems for the defense commission. Mr. Hillman will be assistant director.

With full realization of the urgency of the defense situation, the only wonder is that the President did not take this step weeks ago. That the armament building program is bogging down in unnecessary delays is evident to everyone, and much of this delay can be chargeable to the fact there has been no real head to the defense commission, with full authority.

That deficiency is now eliminated. The President, in announcing the new appointments, said he was delegating to the new office all possible powers under the constitution which a President could turn over to subordinates. They will have full power to make decisions and carry them out, without first referring to him for presidential approval.

The effect of the newly created office should be quickly apparent. Mr. Knudsen is a man whose entire career has demonstrated his ability to get things done and, with the backing of Hillman on behalf of labor, of Stimson and Knox on behalf of the buyers—the army and navy—he should be able to inject a new efficiency into the general picture of the creation of arms and war equipment for Britain and, later, for our own defense program.

Britain still stands, the Greeks push forward, China keeps the Jap occupied, and we swing into full production any year now. Boy, are we safe!

Blackout in America

At Charleston, S. C., they are making "test blackouts" of the port area. Rear Admiral William Allen, commandant of the Charleston Navy Yard, reports a "completely successful" 23-minute blackout of the yard, while plans are being made by both military and municipal authorities for a blackout of the entire port area.

There is no particular need for alarm at such a report. In preparing armed defense for the nation, it is as necessary to prepare for prompt and efficient blackout in time of need, as it is to train men in the handling of modern arms. In fact, it might be a good thing if other communities—Atlanta, for instance—found out how complete a blackout could be instituted if it had to be done.

But there is an ominous memory that comes at the news of blackouts in America. It is only about 18 months ago since the cities of England were conducting test blackouts, practicing for perfection and checking against those who didn't comply with the regulations. And look at the vital part the blackout is playing, every night, in England today.

For code purposes, the army signal corps will try out the Comanche tongue, which—like a high school girl's phone conversation—is not a written language.

Not All Mechanized

That the horse and the mule still have their uses in a modern army is evidenced in the report of the War Department purchasing office, which in listing purchases made during the past five months, included 12,832 horses and mules bought for the Remount Service, to keep pace with the increasing size of the United States army.

There are places where pack mules and saddle horses can go that no automotive equipment can follow. There are uses for the animals that can not be filled by any mechanical transport device. There are duties which can be performed more quickly, more efficiently and more economically by the patient animals than by any other means.

The romance may be fast disappearing from modern war, but there is still need for the cavalry and the long-nosed mule is still a vital item when it comes to packing supplies into almost inaccessible mountain regions.

Tin Pan Alley has tried nobly in its possibility-of-war songs, but so far hasn't been able to rhyme "totalitarian" with "moon."

Deportation Blockade

The man on the street, in considering the problem of foreign agents engaged in subversive work in this country, and other undesirable aliens, is apt to easily dismiss the whole thing by saying, "Just send 'em back from where they came."

That such a solution is not easy, under war conditions, is revealed in a recent report from Ellis Island, the famous detention place in New York harbor, where newly arrived immigrants are kept for inspection and where deportees are held pending arrangements for shipping them back to their countries of origin.

Under war conditions and regulations, the United States cannot send deportees into the war zones, exposed to all the risks from the air, from underseas and from surface raider ships. That is, not unless the deportee signs a waiver. Then, they may be placed on board belligerent ships headed for some port of their own choosing. There are, of course, no American vessels sailing into the war zones, because of the neutrality act.

As a result, Ellis Island is already badly overcrowded, with no hope of reducing the number of its inmates. Today, only the most extreme cases are being fed and lodged there at government expense. The great bulk of those who would be deported, in normal times, just have to be turned loose with the hope that authorities in this country will keep a careful eye upon them and their activities.

This government would be delighted if these problem guests would move on, anywhere. But it is powerless to send them back to Europe without their own consent. Which is forthcoming only in rare instances.

Swing band instruments valued at $8,000 are destroyed in an Ottawa fire; but it's no use. They keep on making them.

Needed Job Begun

The first project in Fulton county's million-dollar school improvement program was launched last week when ground was broken for the new school at Union City.

Other new schools, additions to many of those already existing and other improvements are to be paid for out of the $750,000 bond issue approved last June by Fulton voters, and by WPA funds. It is planned to push the work as rapidly as consistent with good construction, for the need is pressing.

The trend toward rural or semi-rural residence has moved many children into the country areas outside of the city, with the result that there has been created a much heavier demand on county school facilities than ever anticipated.

Fulton county has one of the finest school systems of its type in the country. The work begun this week at Union City will provide for the heavy influx of new scholars and will keep this county's reputation for public education facilities up to its former high standard.

The disappearance of the running board from the motor car gives rise to a problem: On what does the speed cop deposit a foot heavily while asking directions to the fire?

People begin to ask what it was the Duce and the Fuehrer had in common in the first place, beside being stagestruck.

Editorial Symposium

PETAINE, LAVAL AND HITLER

That Marshal Petain, chief of the French state, has felt compelled to release ousted Vice Premier Laval from "detention" and send him back to Paris on an official mission for the Vichy government "is ample proof of the complete subjection in which the Vichy regime is held by the Berlin government," says the NEW YORK SUN, which sees in the rehabilitation order the "public humiliation" of Petain.

However, "not a word which can shed an authoritative light on the significance of the whole mysterious affair has yet reached the public," says the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE points out, speculating that "Herr Hitler, if it suits his purpose, may employ the episode . . . as an excuse to take over the rest of the country and establish himself on the shores of the Mediterranean." The SCRANTON TIMES sees "Disunity and human selfishness" playing "into Hitler's hands."

In the diplomatic game, "Hitler does not hold all the cards," says the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL, for "A march into the unoccupied region in violation of the armistice terms would immediately cause the French fleet to go over to the North African colonies and cause these colonies to take up arms against the enemy of the Vichy regime." At the same time, the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH reports that Petain has "refused use of French ports for the sending of Nazi troops to relieve the staggering Mussolini. But," continues the POST-DISPATCH, "if it comes to a showdown, Petain is powerless."

Then, to the DETROIT FREE PRESS, "The French leaders are but puppets dancing to Hitler's tune." The naming of Pierre Etienne Flandin as foreign minister in place of Laval "means that Vichy will become more subservient to Berlin," is the belief of the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER, which thinks, "Henceforth Petain's Maxine Weygand, remaining in French North Africa, becomes a more important figure." Regarding Weygand, the PORTLAND OREGONIAN sees him objecting "to the stories started in Britain and America to the effect that he contemplates throwing French Africa with the free forces. France is one, he says—the France of Petain!" The OREGONIAN concludes: "He cannot but be one of the most tortured men on earth, and his decision is not yet apparent." Also conjecturing over the general's status, the PROVIDENCE JOURNAL feels that "Hitler, of course, does not want to force Weygand into the war against the Axis. But Italy's desperate plight, daily calling for quick amelioration, may force him to act, but if he acts, if he occupies all of France, he runs many risks, not the least of which is French Colonial revolt."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

IT'S UP TO KNUDSEN WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The most important aspect of the proposed reorganization of the defense set-up, as revealed to date, is that William S. Knudsen has been given what he wants. Shortly after the first White House indications that the much-needed consolidation of the defense effort was at hand, one of his associates asked the burly, quiet-spoken defense production chief whether the President was following his recommendations. His answer was a simple, perfectly unqualified, "Yes."

At this writing, the details of the new set-up are far from clear. Possibly decisions on matters of detail may have qualified Knudsen's satisfaction. Yet the fact remains that every one in a position to speak with authority now flatly says, "Knudsen has been made the boss."

In the past, Knudsen has not been boss. He has been only one among seven defense commissioners, and he has had to submit all major policy decisions to the commission for general, and often interminable, debate. In his own field of production, his function, in the words of a man who has worked intimately with him, has been "largely moral." The real authority over, and responsibility for defense production have been lodged in the procurement branches of the War and Navy Departments.

"IT'S UP TO HIM" Now, however, the seven-man commission has been, in effect, superseded by the new four-man council composed of Knudsen, Hillman, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox. Furthermore, so far as can be learned from sources close to them, the two chiefs of the service departments have been associated with Knudsen mainly because some way had to be found to bring Army and Navy procurement under Knudsen's authority without an application to congress. Messrs. Stimson and Knox do not propose to interfere with Knudsen. On matters of great import, they will, of course, confer with him. In day-to-day business, their able subordinates, Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson and Undersecretary of the Navy James F. Forrestal, will work with him. But the direction of the decisions and the organization will be left to Knudsen. "It's up to him," to quote again one of the persons mentioned above.

If Messrs. Stimson and Knox were average office-holders, no one would credit their intention not to challenge Knudsen's supremacy. They have been given power, and the average office-holder lacks the self-abnegation required not to use a power that is given. The truth is, however, that for some time past Stimson and Knox and their henchmen, Patterson and Forrestal, have been working quietly and adroitly to build Knudsen up for the position he has now been granted.

Some time ago, Stimson seems to have had a notion that final authority might be lodged in the War Department, but if he did, he must have changed his mind. For when the President left for his vacation cruise, he is understood to have taken with him memoranda from both War and Navy Departments, urging improvements in the defense set-up along the lines now followed. With him he also had Knudsen's memorandum on the subject, prepared some weeks before, as well as plans from many other quarters, calling for everything from superficial changes intended solely for public consumption, to the establishment of a full-fledged, cabinet-rank department of munitions and supply.

DECIDED TO ACT When the President returned from his cruise, he had only made up his mind to act, without having chosen any one among the proposals submitted to him. When the War and Navy departments, in the course of the conference the President made it perfectly clear his only interest was to get the defense job done. He even signified his willingness to give Knudsen alone full authority, if necessary. Besides the need to fit Army and Navy procurement into the picture, however, there were certain other difficulties in the way, such as the President's reluctance to deprive his secretaries of war and navy of some share of responsibility. Thus the four-man council was decided on.

How the new set-up works will depend on Knudsen, so long as Stimson and Knox maintain their present self-restraint. At present Knudsen's production division of the defense commission is utterly inadequate to its task. Some have charged that this was because Knudsen had no experience as an organizer or administrator, having been simply a "production man" at General Motors. Actually, men who worked with him say that he exercised complete executive and administrative authority over all the industrial activities of the vast General Motors empire.

Nevertheless, Knudsen is still something of a gamble. Lacking authority, he has not done many things that needed to be done in these past months. The anti-Knudsenites say he could have assumed the authority. Men close to him reply that when he came to Washington, he properly decided never to exceed the directives given him by the President. Which is right will be proven by the event. The character of the organization Knudsen builds will be the preliminary test.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

Sentiment

Of Gifts.

Was a lady friend who was discussing the different styles of gift giving. She expressed the view that men are more sentimental than women in choosing presents. Men, she said, like to select something of lasting use and value, with the idea that the memory of the gift will remain as long as the gift, whereas women go for the more useless, frilly things and are more apt to consider gift giving a duty that has to be done, regardless.

Well, as far as the sentiment of the two sexes is concerned, I'll go along with her. Men are the more sentimental, not only in gift selection, but in all facets of life. No need to argue that here, it is self-evident.

But I don't know about that gift selection. I've seen so many men who select the craziest sort of gifts. I suppose they are more sentimental in this, on the average, just because they are the sentimental sex.

But I'm inclined to think that the matter of gift selection could be used as a rather interesting index to character if we could check on it. I'd like to get the reactions of the proprietors of gift stores and of the clerks behind the counters.

By Their Gifts

Shall Ye Know Them.

What is the basic difference in character which makes one man send his girl friend a bunch of roses, while another sends her a box of hosiery, a fur coat or a new radio? Why does one man buy sensible worth-while lingerie for his wife, and his next-door neighbor indulge in stuff too fragile to survive a couple of washings? Why does—oh, a lot of things.

I've noticed one thing. When there is a baby in the family it is grandmother who makes presents of new coat, new hat, rompers or a pair of shoes. Grandfather is the one who buys the teddy bear, the doll and the big red ball.

I know a married woman who is always disappointed when her husband gives her a present of "something for the house." She doesn't want kitchen or dining room utensils or conveniences, she doesn't want ornaments. She wants something personal, or her own particular use or pleasure.

I think her idea is that the "sensible" household gifts would have to be bought anyway, and if she gets something that isn't really an essential, it's something extra, of her very own.

Puzzled

Youth.

Young man of my acquaintance came to me with a problem the other day. I provided a solution, too, but the stubborn wretch didn't seem to like the suggestion, preferring to stew in the juice of his own making.

Seems he has three girl friends. Christmas is near and all three have intimated they plan to give him quite worth-while presents. Which means he'll have to get three not inexpensive gifts for them. And the problem of finances rears its ugly head.

He says he has tried to stage a decent, controlled quarrel with one or two of the girls, a quarrel that would, at least, carry over Christmas and the gift buying season. But evidently the girls know what time of year it is, too, for they just won't quarrel. He says they are all three of them, the sweetest and most forbearing girls you ever saw, right now. He can, apparently, do no wrong—at least, not until after Christmas.

So I suggested that he date all three of them to meet him at the same rendezvous at the same time and, simply, not show up himself. He says he is dissatisfied and still mulling to himself about the cost of gifts commensurate with what he's been told he is to receive—three of 'em!

Mussolini

And His Bath.

With British warships running all over "Mare Nostrum," the Adriatic and other waters that Mussolini has fondly claimed as his own, I Duce is probably nervous, nowadays, every time he takes a bath.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Thursday, December 23, 1915: "London, December 22.—An official message received here today from Berlin describes Emperor William's illness as zellebewegungs, (more frequently given as bindegewebentzuendung.)"

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From the news columns of Tuesday, December 23, 1890: "The total earnings of the Louisville & Nashville railroad for the first two weeks of this month were $778,865, a slight decrease from the same period last year."

Secrets Hidden.

Private diaries of generals of World War No. 1 will be revealed in 1943, it is announced in London. Britain's official history of the war, a work of 35 volumes, was completed within the last two years, but private diaries of generals were excluded. The historians handled 20,000 box files of memoirs, dispatches, reports, clippings and documents, with 80,000 maps. Several countries have yet to complete their histories of the war. The United States has not yet finished its World War No. 1 history.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Devoted

To Benito

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—We have in our midst an Italian immigrant millionaire who is a Tammany politician who affects to be and, to some extent is, a political padrone over a large element of our population on the eastern seaboard from Philadelphia to Boston. He operates two newspapers of large circulation published mostly in the Italian language and has often declared his devotion to Mussolini. His name is Generoso Pope and his papers are called Il Progresso, Italo-Americano and Il Corriere d'America.

Pope made his fortune in this country, starting from scratch, and his prestige is based on an assumption that he can deliver or influence the votes of several millions of American citizens who were born in Italy or whose recent forebears were born there, and that he can deliver their sympathy or loyalty to the Duce.

For a long time Pope has enjoyed and capitalized on profit, and for his personal vanity, which is markedly similar to Mussolini's own self-approval, the favor of the Fascist government. He has received pompous honors in Naples, the port from which he sailed as a handkerchief immigrant, and in Rome, at the hands of the Duce and the King. He has not neglected to remind his readers of these gaudy compliments and his editorial theme has been unpleasantly reminiscent of that which was employed to set apart from the neighbors the German minorities in the Sudeten area of Czechoslovakia and in Poland.

Theme of

Persecution

It is a theme of persecution of a national minority, of discrimination against those for whom he assumes the role of spokesman and defender. Pope's papers constantly impress on his readers a belief that they are different from the rest of the Americans; that they are Americans, yes, but somehow still Italians; that it is impossible to be a loyal American and still be loyal to a country whose official spokesmen have constantly reviled this country in the Italian press for four years; that the American resentment of this anti-American policy is nothing but British propaganda; and that they owe it to their blood to cherish not only the culture of Italy and their relatives there, but Fascism and Mussolini.

This constant propaganda in Pope's papers tends to make these people self-conscious, to segregate them from other Americans both socially and politically, and to place them morally on the defensive as though they really were somehow responsible for the awful obscenity of Fascism. The Italian consuls, of course, play ball with Pope.

The effect of all this, of course, is fine for Pope. By segregating these people in this way he creates a more or less exclusive advertising field for advertisers of Italian goods. He resists assimilation of his clientele to the rest of the community and then complains that they are regarded as foreigners and forced into the status of an Italian national minority in the United States, where he found opportunity and success.

No Harmless

Situation

This is no longer a harmless, no-harmless, no-harmless, no-harmless situation. It is no trivial thing to permit a man who has expressed his admiration of a European dictator to create in the United States a national minority with a persecution complex. These people are victims all right, but not victims of their American neighbors or of any policy of the American government. They are victims of Pope's ambition and his investment in a publishing enterprise which would suffer if they were permitted to become one with their neighbors.

Among the Americans of Italian blood or birth there are many who resent any attempt to speak for them as Italians or Italo-Americans. Like John Lewis when he affects to speak, sweepingly, for Pope takes in vast areas of territory than he commands. For example, the author of the letter received today, which says, in part:

"I am a young woman of Italian birth, but of American citizenship. Some who come from Italy make it difficult for the rest of us who love America and detest Mussolini and all he stands for."

"There are those of us whose eyes fill with tears at the sight of the American flag, tears of gratitude for the ideals of freedom and humanity it represents. We hate Fascist culture, we only recognize the culture of Da Vinci, Dante, Galileo." Please write a kind word about us who pledge allegiance only to America."

Workers Hold On.

Women civil service workers in Mexico will continue to hold their jobs despite the Unemployed Avila Camachist Committee. Made up of supporters of President Camacho, it was formed to oust women and employed by the government. Opponents in Mexico City and elsewhere disputed the claim that the women were keeping good meat out of jobs. They have convinced the government that the women workers are efficient and that the majority of them have dependents.

Skyscraper Boom.

Tall buildings are transforming the skyline of Sao Paulo, Brazil's coffee metropolis. During 1939, permits were issued for 10,183 new buildings, a total which compares with a 30-year average of 3,791 annually. Sixty-seven buildings of more than five stories were authorized, of which 33 were buildings having over 10 stories. During the first quarter of 1940, permits were granted for 22 additional buildings of more than five stories, including 12 with more than 10.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"MAKING MOCK OF UNIFORMS"

It is all right, I guess, for everyone being entitled to a squawk, if I think some of the publicity being given the situation at Fort Benning has dangerous potentialities. It may give the public the idea that all soldiers are out to raise hell and chase chipmunks when as a matter of fact soldiers are, with but few exceptions, just the average boy with the usual reactions of young men when released from discipline.

The problem of providing entertainment and recreation for thousands of young men concentrated in one locality is as yet unsolved.

It is to the very large discredit of the state of Alabama that it did not long ago step in and slap down the ears of the Phenix City officials, who apparently never raised a finger to keep out the worst sort of chiseling, crooked gamblers who could be shot and the country very much better off. They also let hundreds of women come in to take what has been described as the wage of shame. They might have got away with this had they introduced some sort of control and medical inspection. But so great was their desire to get as much money as possible that they let anyone come, taking their cut from the wages of shame. The boys were "rolled" when possible and subjected to all the exploitation possible. This usually consists of giving the young man a few slugs of doctored whisky. I find myself recalling some more of Mr. Kipling's sayings. In one of them, "Advice to The Young British Soldier," he quoted a sergeant:

"First, mind you stay clear o' the grog sellers' huts. For they sell you fixed bayonets that rot out your guts—Ay, drink that 'ud eat the live steel from your butts—And it's bad for the young British soldier."

It's bad, too, for the young American soldier when a city or county is so selfishly bent on gouging all it can from the pockets of soldiers that it will permit all sorts of bazzards to infest a city or town, "rolling" and robbing soldiers. Some of the Phenix City bazzards have been there for years, as many as ten or more, and their joints have never been touched. Now they ought to put a soldier on guard in front of every one of them and keep out every soldier until the joints die out. That would cause the bazzards running them more pain than just regulating them. The good people of Phenix City, who make up a majority, would like that.

A DIFFICULT POSITION

The cities where there are army camps are in a difficult spot. There ought not to be any publicity which would give a lot of average American boys a black eye. He isn't a hero nor is he a blackguard. He is a soldier doing his duty.

Now, the average private soldier isn't going to be invited to the country club nor is he going to be in evidence at the debutantes' party. He is going to have to go to public dances and he is going to "jukes." I think they ought to have "jukes" and public dances. The "jukes" if not run by bazzards out to rob, can be fun. They offer sandwiches and the music costs but five cents or a dime. The private soldier can have his food and fun at small cost. These can be regulated and they can starve out the others. It is a pity they can't run them out by starving them out and making them "out of bounds." At any rate, there is no need to paint the soldier in a bad light. He isn't to blame. Kipling's "Tommy" expressed it:

"O, making mock of uniforms that guard you while you sleep Is cheaper than them uniforms, an' they're starvation cheap; An' bustlin' drunken soldiers when they're goin' large a bit Is five times better business than paradin' in full kit. Then it's Tommy this, an' Tommy that, an' 'Tommy how's your soul'?"

But it's "Thin red line of heroes" when the drums begin to roll."

It will be very unwise if, out of the Phenix City and Columbus reports as issued by the secretary of war, the American soldier is pictured as anything but the average American boy. His problem of entertainment and fun is a major one. It must be met and it will be most foolish if it is planned in any way which would seek to keep him away from beer and dancing and feminine companionship. What has happened isn't the fault of the soldiers, but of civilian governments, which have permitted all sorts of bazzards to prey on the soldier.

TREMENDOUS TASK

It is a tremendous task to build an army. It offers problems of the men and their personal lives. It involves huge and costly contracts. In this war preparation the government is seeking to avoid the scandals of "war millionaires" which have appeared in every great military movement by this nation.

In no war was it worse than the War Between the States. It is painful to the professional southerner to read that there was profiteering in the Confederacy and that even in the last emergencies there were goods and supplies withheld from the army because payment could not be made in gold or federal monies. The north, however, saw the worst of it.

At the Battle of Bull Run some of the federal troops had rifles bought in Belgium and not worth shooting. Making large profits out of patriotism was the rule.

Carl Sandburg, in his marvelous books on Lincoln, devotes a chapter to the corruption. The public treasury was looted time after time. One jobber from Vermont, Jim Fiske, sold blankets at three times the price the factory had expected. He was quoted as saying, "You can sell anything to the government at almost any price you've got the guts to ask." Discarded tents were re-sold to the government at great increases in prices; tubs sold in the open market at $1,500 were sold to the government at $4,000. A committee revealed a sickening amount of fraud. General Sherman, writing to a friend, said, "Corruption so underlies the government that even in this time of trial cheating in clothes, blankets, flour, bread, everything is universal." Soldiers were exploited. Great cheaters, like the bazzards of Phenix City, are not new to war or preparation for war.

A Book You Will Like If You Like Nasty People

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

Since the epidemic of white-trash novels began some years ago, nothing has appeared to challenge the supremacy of "Tobacco Road." But the autumn crop of literature brought us another which may win equal fame. It is a story of pore whites in the Tennessee mountains, entitled "The Hawk's Done Gone."

The reviewer who did not a review of the book, will give you some idea of its style and character:

I knowed bad luck was coming. Hodges, the man I took up with, had a fight with Punky in the pine woods and Punky cut him open. When I come by, Hodges was laying on the ground with his innards spilled on the pine needles. It's always a sign of bad luck to see innards spilled on pine needles. I walked home singin' because the sky was so purty, but that night the creek rose and drowned our old cow.

When I got home I saw Finky, my oldest youngun, sparkin' his half-sister, Louetta. "You're ugly as a stepped-on toad," he told her.

Quick as greased lightning she answered: "You ain't so purty, your own self."

Attempts To Do a Christmas Column And Gives It Up.

Two more days before Christmas! Ought to be a swell column there.

But is there?

Everything has been written about Christmas that can be written.

I'm pretty sure I have written 27 Christmas columns and 40 times that many stories about Santa and tiny tots and empty stockings and was faces pressed against the window pane.

And for the life of me I can't think up any new idea on the subject.

But, friends, do not turn away. Ideas or no idea, I'm going to hand it to you and you've got to take it. Bad or worse.

Now, let's see! Just a moment, please.

Oh, yes. Charles Dickens' "Christmas Carol." I suppose Lionel Barrymore will do Old Scrooge via the airwaves. He always has.

But I cannot hope to improve on Dickens or Lionel, so let's try something else.

"Holy Night, Stilly Night." It may be sacrilege but I'm rather glad dear old Schumann-Henk isn't singing it this season. Grand old artist—but voices do not last as long as ambition.

Besides that, it's a German song, so we shouldn't listen to it. True, it was written many, many years ago, when the Germans were a home-loving, food-loving, neighbor-loving people with good will toward all men—and with all men's good will toward them. But out with it! We don't like Hitler.

"Jingle Bells, Jingle Bells." Joyous tune—crystal snow, a sleigh, a happy singing throng. No complaint about that—except that some basso announcer will tie it up with a canned soup.

Shopping throngs. Belated gift purchasers. Tired shop girls. Nothing new I can say about any of those.

So I think I won't attempt a Christmas column, after all. I trust few of you will cancel your subscriptions.

Den of Iniquity?

Talk again in the papers about the Alabama town of Phenix City, just across the bridge from Columbus, Ga., being a den of iniquity which will surely corrupt the morals of the town across at Fort Benning, inside Georgia.

I took pains to investigate Phenix City several weeks ago and was awfully disappointed.

Perhaps I didn't investigate it at the right moment or under the correct auspices. It was about noon on a Sunday and my wife was with me. We drove in and drove out. So I came in contact with no sin, darn it!

Governor of Alabama is quoted as saying he fixed everything the last time a row was stirred up—by revoking the liquor licenses of all the stores in Phenix City.

Which, I should think, would hardly disturb the vendors. No licenses, no fees to the state. And a chance to raise the price of a pint by 25 per cent—because bootleg liquor is naturally better and costs more. Of course, somebody must be "fixed."

What does bother me is a story that rents in Columbus are being raised to a fare-you-well.

Young officers—lieutenants and such—don't draw such magnificent salaries as the public might believe. And if they're married and their wives come down with them and must look for apartments—there's a problem.

It's always been an axiom that one could—and should—soak a railroad company or a state or a nation for all the traffic would bear. But Uncle Sam doesn't pay the rent on officers' apartments. It comes out of their pay. I hope the landlords and agents of Columbus and vicinity will have a heart. Or half a heart.

My Alarm Clock.

Twelve o'clock! Noon! Or high noon, if it's a wedding.

Voice of a sonorous whistle floats into my window from far away. A moment later another, of shriller tone.

Tradition! Dinner time! Hour's lay-off time! At the sawmill, the shoe factory or the cotton mill.

Wonder where those whistles are sounded in Atlanta. And why? Clocks are on walls. Most folk, rich or poor, carry a watch of some kind.

Not that I mind the whistles. I rather like them, just so they're not too close.

Atlanta has no central courthouse clock, striking the hours. That's small town stuff.

But that deep-voiced whistle reminds me it is noon. And time to get started finishing my stuff before 2 p. m.

I have no alarm clock in my house. But the fair Irene, next door, takes her husband to the car line promptly at 7:30. Her car is quiet and doesn't disturb me. But it tells me something. That I can turn over and snatch a fine nap before 7:45 when she brings it back up the driveway beneath my window. And then it's time to get up.

I often wish Irene, after depositing Miller at the car line, would drive around and see the sights for half an hour or so. For, after all, there's no fun in sleeping the sleep of the just. It's in cat-napping after you know darn well you should be up and doing with a soul full of ambition and a resolution to go out and conquer the world.

On Other Side of Bench

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(P)—Samuel S. Leibowitz, long one of the nation's most famous criminal lawyers, is on the other side of the bench now.

He was sworn in yesterday for a 14-year term as judge of the Kings county court in Brooklyn, in which he had practiced for a quarter century.

Judge Leibowitz said he was primarily interested in rehabilitating youngsters who had become enmeshed in crime "because of environment or lack of religious training."

Rank-and-File Britons Favor Publication of 'War Aims'

42 Per Cent Believe Nation Should Disclose Intentions, 35 Per Cent Voice Opposition While 23 Per Cent Are Undecided.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 22.—With the people of Britain preparing for one of the most critical springs in their history, a survey of British public opinion indicates that a large number of rank-and-file Britishers—more than four in every ten—would approve of Prime Minister Winston Churchill's government drawing up and publishing the country's "war aims."

That is indicated today in a survey completed by the British Institute of Public Opinion—overseas affiliate of the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The whole question of publishing Britain's war aims has been a recurring one in British public discussion since the war began, with many Britons holding that the nation's war aims or "victory aims" should be set down in black and white for their moral and psychological effect.

Others, like Prime Minister Churchill, have heretofore taken the position that the time is "not yet ripe" for Britain to declare her detailed war aims, believing that victory must be won before any public pronouncements about post-war policy could have meaning.

In the first weeks of the war the British Institute of Public Opinion found 44 per cent saying they thought the government's war aims should be stated, while 41 per cent thought those aims were "already clear enough" or thought formal discussion at that time undesirable. Fifteen per cent in the early survey (October, 1939) said they were undecided.

In the present measurement of British opinion the Institute asked: "Do you think the government should draw up and publish our war aims?"

The replies of those reached in a carefully selected cross-section of British civilian life were as follows:

Favor Publishing Aims	42%
Oppose Publishing Aims	35%
Undecided	23%

'Original Cowgirl' Of Stage Is Killed

GUTHRIE, Okla., Dec. 22.—(P)

Miss Lucille Mulhall, once known as the "original cowgirl" of the stage, was killed early today in a motor car accident.

The accident, in which an unidentified man was killed and three other persons injured, occurred two miles north of Mulhall, a town named after her father, the late Colonel Zach Mulhall.

Miss Mulhall, once described by President Theodore Roosevelt as the world's most expert horsewoman, developed her skill on cowboy sports as a girl.

When she was only seven, Colonel Mulhall offered her all the yearlings she could rope and brand herself on the large Mulhall ranch.

It was not long before he begged off on his bargain. Too many calves, including 20 of the wildest steers of the ranch, were wearing the initials "L. H."—the girl's personal brand.

very name denotes and declares that Jesus Christ is the miracle of miracles.

His name shall ever be called Wonderful for what He has been and done in the past. He who became the Babe of Bethlehem was the King of the ages. Look, if you will, at the manifestations of greatness since time began—at man, at a majestic tree, at the earth from whence the tree was sprung, at the earth when it was without form and darkness was upon the face of the earth, at the sea upon whose bosom countless ships have swept without leaving a furrow, at the heavens above, stretched like a curtain over the vast basin beneath, at the angels. Look upon all the past, from man to angel, and then bow in reverence and awe in the presence of Him who was and is and shall be called Wonderful. Before any of these were, He was; and by Him were all things made, and without Him was not anything made that was made.

His name shall be called Wonderful for what He has already done—His incarnation. His atoning death upon the cross. His resurrection. Christmas brings us again to pause in the atmosphere of the incarnation—the Word made flesh. If we miss this central truth in the Christmas music, the Christmas pageant, the Christmas prayer, the Christmas gift, the Christmas sermon, we have missed the whole meaning of the event—order in Bethlehem, which one has well called "the turning point in time."

Again, His name shall be called Wonderful because of what He is and what He is doing in the present. Space restrains me here, but I must declare the chiefest fact of life for every Christian in the realization that Jesus Christ dwells within our hearts each passing moment. With Paul we humbly say: "I live, and yet not I, Christ liveth in me." And every Christian delights to declare: "His name is Wonderful." And if there were space, I would go on to speak of what He shall do and do in the future, all of which centers in the truth—He is the Prince of Peace.

Five Arrested, 25 Held

In Big Gambling Raid

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(P)—Five men were arrested and 25 surprised patrons in evening clothes were held for questioning by police today after a pre-dawn gambling raid on an establishment off fashionable Fifth avenue.

A burglar alarm jangled as a plainclothes patrolman smashed a glass door panel to gain entrance into the building, a richly-furnished five-story stone residence in East 68th street.

Patrons bolted for exits but were stopped by detectives.

Shakedowns, If Any, Elusive At Hinesville

fee of $25 or $50, depending upon his trade, is paid.

And, though this fact has not hitherto been made public, there are a goodly number of the 5,000 men working here who have made their down payment and have successfully dodged the union steward when he came around to collect their weekly installment. There are some who have gone to work without paying anything at all. The unions consider this practice, which they are powerless to stop, because the job is so big and scattered, something in the nature of a shakedown itself.

"We know they are doing it," W. M. Tanner, president of the Savannah council, said yesterday, and under the agreement with the contractors we've got the right to ask that they be laid off. But we've let them alone, figuring that they are hurting themselves by lodging more than they are hurting anybody else. They are accepting the benefit of the week and hour scale the unions got for them and a lot of them are making three times more than they ever made in their life. Maybe they will never need the union membership they are dodging and, again, maybe they will."

The contractors corroborate the fact the unions don't harass the lodgers. So far, and the job is three-fourths done, no union agent has asked a contractor to lay off a man because he has failed or refused to pay his fees to the union. Rumors floating around the job that some men were laid off when they nearly paid up their fees so that a new man could come on the job to pay another fee they described "so much bunk."

No union agent has said anything to me about laying a man off for any reason, "one contractor said.

HEAVEN—Bing Crosby and Baby Sandy have star roles in "East Side of Heaven" at Joy's Atlanta, tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday.

Attitude of Men.

Outside of those who plan to follow the building trades professionally during the defense boom, and who want union membership so that they may go on other jobs, the attitude of the men toward the union collector seems about like the attitude of a rabbit toward a hunter. If they can dodge him when he comes around, they do it. And when one of them is caught and pays up, the others whom the collector missed laugh loudly at him.

"Steward caught Old Joe and took three weeks back fees off him," they say, gleefully.

The fact that some get by without paying of course, causes some grumbling on the part of others who pay. But nothing has arisen on this point to interfere with the progress of the work.

Even the workers agree that the unions have been extremely lenient in collections. When a working week was curtailed by bad weather conditions, lack of materials or any other cause this was taken into consideration and the weekly collection was reduced accordingly.

"They've just let it rock along, generally," a contractor, who, in the beginning, was not in favor of the job being "closed" to non-union workers, admitted.

The wage scale on the job was set in August, before contracts were let, and the union scale would have been paid whether the job was closed or not. The union scale, of 40 cents an hour for common laborers, and $1.00 to $1.25 an hour for skilled workmen, was established at a conference between Department of Labor officials, the Quartermasters Corps, and officials of the Savannah trade organization. This was approximately twice as much as was being paid non-union workers in the Hinesville area at the time, and was based on the scale prevailing in Atlanta and Jacksonville, which was slightly higher than the Savannah scale.

Conference Held.

Later at a conference between labor officials, contractors and Army representatives, the job was made a strictly union job—the unions persuading the contractors that they had at their command an adequate supply of labor, both skilled and unskilled, and that unless the job was closed no union men would work on it. Under this pressure, the contractors agreed to run the project as a union job, with the unions providing all the labor. However, the unions were not able to fulfill this agreement.

"When the time came we found that they were able to find among union men only about one-fifth of the carpenters, one-seventh of the plumbers and one-half the electrical workers required," Major M. T. Whitworth, construction quartermaster for the Army, said yesterday.

To solve the situation the contractors themselves were allowed to recruit labor wherever they could find it, giving preference to common labor from the immediate locality. The unions, though, stipulated that each of these non-union men, skilled and otherwise, should pay the initiation fee leading to union membership and granting the right to work on the job.

Union leaders admit the inability to furnish sufficient labor from their own ranks, as had been agreed, but blame it on their efforts to get as many skilled workmen as possible from nearby.

"We could have got plenty by calling on unions throughout the country," Mr. Tanner said, "but we made the mistake of trying to give the fellows in this section a chance first."

Men Now Working

Many of the men now working would not be able to hold a union card under different circumstances, Tanner said, frankly.

"Some of them go on the job as carpenters and draw the scale when they aren't really carpenters at all. But this national defense work must be carried on and there's no time to be too critical. We didn't have time to examine them, to find out their qualifications. Some of them just couldn't make the grade and when they came back to us we gave them back what they had paid toward union membership."

So that's about the picture. The job pays the union scale by agreement. And everybody who works on it is a union man—if the union collector can catch him.

Right now everything runs smoothly and the project seems headed for completion on the scheduled time—about February 15. No great friction seems to be resulting among the workmen because of the union fees. On the other hand, the unions aren't being very tough on the fee dodgers.

Examination Necessary.

There may be some disturbance later on. Payment of the fee does not constitute full union membership. There must be an examination by a union committee, to learn if a man is good enough to carry the card. Jobs requiring more skill than this one. There will be many weeded out. They may demand a refund on the money they've paid in. It is not quite clear whether the unions will give it to them or not. They may figure that by working the union scale the men have made more than enough to compensate them for that they've paid in. There may be some disturbance then. But that is some time off, toward the end of the job.

Little Trouble.

In other respects Hinesville has taken its boom with remarkably little trouble. There's been no great increase in crime, though the sleepy town of 600 jumped to 5,000 and more, nearly overnight.

Since the job started there has been only one killing, and that happened down at Ludowici, the results of a gambler's quarrel. There have been, however, a few "shootings" by the police. A King, "Two Little cutting scrapes and one stabbing." Once he had to chase out of town a bunch of Gypsy fortune tellers suspected of stealing.

Houses are hard to get, of course, and workers are living in towns 20 miles away and more. Hundreds of trailers are scattered in the woods along the highways, and there are many little shanties thrown up here and there. Some of the trailers have little Christmas trees set up in them, and look very homey.

Restaurants Crowded.

Food is fairly cheap, and though downtown restaurants are crowded to the doors, a good meal can be had for 35 cents.

There is no moral problem. As soon as Chief King sees anybody he thinks might be in town for no good purpose, he chases her out. And he has warned the city's taxi drivers, too, that they must be very careful about whom they haul and where they haul them.

From the way some of the workmen are heard to complain his system seems to be working very well.

First Lady To Give Tea To Aid Paralysis Fight

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The first of a series of home parties throughout the country for the benefit of the 1941 "fight infantile paralysis" campaign will be given by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at the White House on January 14. It will be a tea.

Announcing this today, the committee for the celebration of the President's birthday said hundreds of similar benefits would be held during the two weeks preceding the annual President's birthday ball celebrations of January 30.

Army Pilot Is Killed In Ohio Plane Crash

DAYTON, Ohio, Dec. 22.—(AP)—An Army plane crashed near here today and killed the pilot, Lieutenant P. L. G. Moore, the only occupant of the ship.

Lieutenant Moore, stationed at Selfridge field in Michigan, was "detached duty" at Patterson field here. His home was in Wichita, Kan. The crash occurred about 15 miles north of Dayton. The pilot was flying a P-39 Air Cobra ship and going through "accelerating" maneuvers.

ROLLER DERBY QUEEN. Miss Eloise McDowell, daughter of Mrs. M. H. Bishop, of 488 Plum street, is a member of the Atlanta Crackers' roller derby team. Two derby skaters will compete at the auditorium Christmas night.

'Grapes of Wrath' Voted Film of Year

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures today selected "The Grapes of Wrath" as the best film of the year on the basis of artistic merit and importance.

The movie was adapted from John Steinbeck's novel dealing with social and economic problems growing out of the migration of "okies" to California.

The board selected "The Baker's Wife," a French production, as the best foreign-language film and "The Fight for Life" as the best documentary movie. It gave honorable mention to "Power and the Land," another documentary film.

Choosing the "ten best American films" of the current year, the board ranked the following in the order named:

"The Grapes of Wrath," "The Great Dictator," "Of Mice and Men," "Our Town," "Fantasia," "The Long Voyage Home," "Foreign Correspondent," "The Biscuits Eater," "Gone With the Wind" and "Rebecca."

Zurich Is Bombed; Civilians Attacked

ZURICH, Switzerland, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Several houses in Zurich were demolished and set afire by bombs tonight, burying civilians beneath wreckage, when foreign warplanes twice dropped explosives here in the second bombing of a Swiss city within a week.

Swiss anti-aircraft guns blazed into action against the unidentified foreign planes over Zurich while air-raid sirens shrieked in Basle and Bern.

Last Monday night foreign planes, later identified by British, Swiss general staff as British, dropped bombs around the railroad station of Basle on the Rhine frontier with Germany and France, killing four persons and causing extensive damage. A formal Swiss protest was made to the British government.

Alice Faye Is Offered $2,500 a Day as Model

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A $2,500-a-day job has been offered to Alice Faye, singing film actress, but she has not decided whether to take it.

The offer by Los Angeles apparel manufacturers proposes that Miss Faye fly to 10 cities in 10 days and model a wardrobe of Los Angeles-Hollywood fashions as an invitation to buyers to attend a spring style showing in Los Angeles, January 20-22.

Miss Faye is offered $25,000 for the tour.

Gene Autry Is Playing At the Cameo Today

Gene Autry, the No. 1 singing cowboy, will be at the Cameo theater today and tomorrow in his latest musical western, "Ride Tenderfoot, Ride."

Smiley Burnette provides the comedy and fun as usual; June Storey, who plays the leading lady in all of Autry's pictures, and Mary Lee, the singing cowgirl who plays the role of June's sister.

'Mexican Spitfire' Opens at Capitol

A merry mix-up of martial complications and masquerades enlivens the new Lupe Velez-Leon Errol film, "Mexican Spitfire Out West," which opened a three-day engagement yesterday at the Capitol theater. This picture can be offered for three days only because of the change in program to be made Wednesday with the offering of the theater's first stage show of the season.

"Spitfire Out West" is the third feature comedy concerning the escapades of a quick-tempered bride and the blundering efforts of her uncle-of-many-disguises to effect a reconciliation and at the same time save a million-dollar deal for the long-suffering husband.

Play From 'Bippy' Presented Tonight

A dramatization of the children's book, "Bippy," will be presented by the Children's Theater of Atlanta at 8 o'clock tonight in the Woman's Club auditorium.

The play was adapted from the book by the author, Elizabeth Downing Barnitz.

Proceeds go to the welfare division of the Woman's Club for "Atlanta Needy Children's Fund."

Deanna Durbin Film Is Showing at Euclid

"Spring Parade" stars Deanna Durbin at the Euclid today and tomorrow.

Robert Cummings, who scored so heavily in one of Miss Durbin's former pictures, will again be seen as the famous star's leading man. The popular player is cast as a young soldier musician, who falls in love with Deanna in a bakery, where he has come to flirt with another girl.

The supporting cast is headed by such screen favorites as Mischa Auer, Henry Stephenson and Reginald Denny.

U. S. Group Permits Sale Of Ships to Panamanians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission announced approval today of the sale of two cargo vessels to Panama firms and their transfer to Panamanian registry.

The Hammond Lumber Company, Portland, Ore., was given permission to sell the Watsonville, 2,220 gross tons, to the Trans-Pacific Steamship Co., S. A., Panama City, Panama.

The Lykes Brothers Steamship Co., Inc., was given permission to sell the Stella Lykes, 2,609 gross tons, to Compania Centro Americana de Navegacion Limitada, Panama City.

Broken Health Problems of 2 Opportunities

Not enough to buy sufficient food for his family. Starvation and constant worry have aggravated his condition. He and his wife and children have been evicted from their home several times because he did not have the money to pay the rent.

Eloise, Ronald and William do not have sufficient food. Their health is being affected by inadequate diet.
If Mr. S. had $35 a month while he is ill, probably he could survive and again earn a living for the group. Better food and less worry would materially help him, as well as make his children healthier—and happier. Atlantans could rehabilitate this family if they would only contribute to the Ten Opportunity fund this Christmas!

Opportunity No. 23.
Mr. Q. is a salesman and has been a good one. He is in his early thirties. He has a wife and two children, Vera, 8, and Fred, 4.
Mr. Q. has had a serious physical breakdown. That is why he is your Christmas Opportunity No. 23, and why he needs $40 a month at least, until he can get on his feet again and support his own family.

This family has been accustomed to a comfortable living. Mr. Q. is the type of man who would never "live off relief." The calamity which has knocked this family over temporarily was something over which he had no control. Fate did it.

The need to help Mr. Q. is great. He is a worthwhile citizen. There is only darkness and sadness at the Q. home this Christmas, but it could be made a place of happiness. Those two little kids deserve a chance, as much as Mr. Q. does. Help this Opportunity family this Christmas, Atlantans.

The man who can perfectly paint anything but your wife's lips carries his ad in the Business Service column in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Opportunity 14 Given Chance By City Union

terday morning Opportunities No. 20 and 21 were told you.

There is still much work to be done toward rehabilitating the city's neediest, most deserving families in 1941—and only a little time in which to assure them of the chance. Small donations have come for Opportunity Families No. 2, 3, and 7. Not enough to provide them the money they need, but part of it. Every little gift helps. Rush your contribution to Hugh H. Trotter, treasurer of the Ten Opportunity fund, so that Christmas morning these families will know they will be secure for a few months while they overcome tremendous problems and win independence.

The City Employees' Union members voted unanimously to give Alice E. help when she needs it most. She is a member of a large family which is being supported now by the small wages of two of her brothers. Both her mother and father are ill and cannot work. Doctors say that Alice must rest and eat wholesome, nourishing food for a year—if she is to live. That chance at life is what the City Employees' Union is giving this frail young girl!

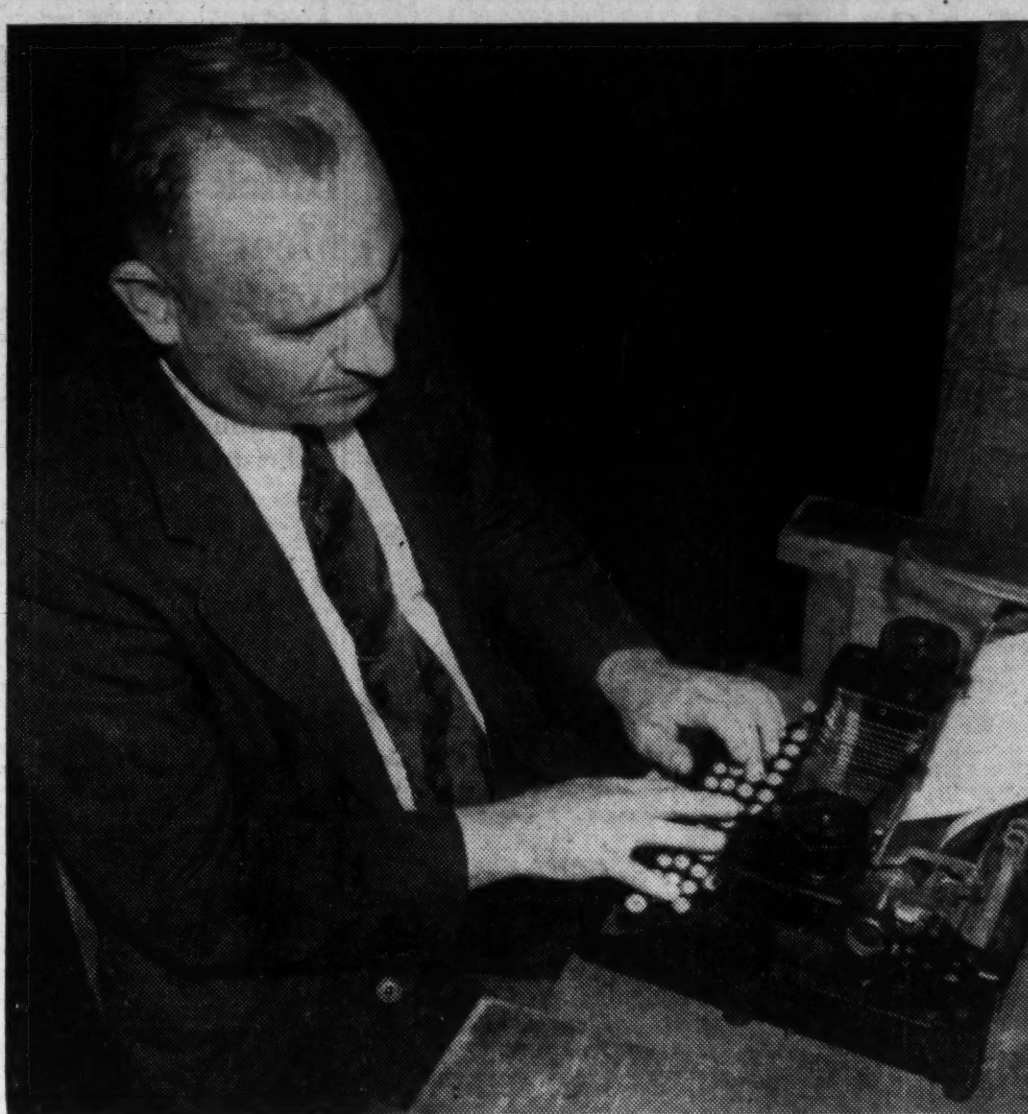

W. B. Walker is president of the city union, and W. A. Florence is financial secretary. Mrs. Mabel Terry is treasurer, while Miss Julia Elliott is secretary. Chapter vice-presidents are O. E. McCollum, S. C. Langley, Mrs. Sarah Cleveland, R. C. Witcher, Mrs. Ruth Thornton and P. E. Smith. The Constitution and the Family Welfare Society, which co-operates with this newspaper in presenting the Opportunity families each Christmas, thank the City Employees' Union for its generous help to one of the city's neediest cases. It is the second time the union has "adopted" an Opportunity family.

Opportunity families are families that can be helped. Money given for them buys security while they wrestle with such problems as death, disease, desertion and injury. Every Opportunity family is faced with some such problem in addition to the need for money. Your contributions at Christmas time each year provide them "balance wheel" dollars that help these people in their battles.

No giving could be worth more than to help rehabilitate a family. Make it your Christmas gift to yourself!

New Win-the-War Group Is Inaugurated in India

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 22.—(AP) The radical Democratic People's party, a new-win-the-war group, was inaugurated today.
The movement is sponsored by Mahendranath Roy, one-time colleague of Joseph Stalin and former member of the committee of the Third International, and by Dr. Narayan Bhaskar Khar, former Congress party (Nationalist) premier of the central provinces.
The conference resolved to form a national democratic bloc, composed of organized opponents of the present Congress party policy, to fight Fascism in India and abroad from "motives of the country's interests and of patriotism."

BLINDNESS NO BAR—Blindness was no bar to Coroner Paul Donehoo when he had a report to make out or a letter to write. Here he is shown seated at his typewriter, which he operated with unusual speed. Donehoo also enjoyed all of the activities of a normal individual and prided himself on his ability as a fisherman. He was an ardent baseball fan, played solitaire and bridge, rode horseback and played a piano exceptionally well.

AT WORK—Here is a photograph of Coroner Paul Donehoo (center) on the job at an inquest. It was made during the 1940 investigation of the flogging death of Ike Gaston, East Point barber, and shows the blind coroner questioning County Policeman J. W. Gilbert (right), while D. H. McKean, a court reporter, takes down the testimony. The coroner's probe led to a widespread grand jury investigation of south Fulton flogging outrages which resulted in the indictment of 17 persons.

Paul Donehoo, Blind Coroner, Is Dead Here

to the Georgia Academy for the Blind at Macon from which he was graduated at the age of 14. He next attended Mercer University, where he took special work and was awarded a degree after three years.

His first job, as a youth of 17, was as a music teacher at Waleska, Ga., where he gave instruction in piano and violin. After a year, he returned to Atlanta to take a job in a theater here playing the piano accompaniment for the old silent films.

At the age of 21, he was elected coroner of the county and the first vote he ever cast was in that election.

In succeeding years, he attended the Klindworth Conservatory of Music, now the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, and the Atlanta Law School.

Admitted to Bar.
Although he never practiced law actively, he was admitted to the bar in Georgia and also was admitted to practice before the supreme court of the United States. After his first few years, he never played music professionally, but it remained a devoted hobby until his death. A master pianist and violinist, he was able to play from memory virtually every great classic for piano and violin. He never played from ear, but memorized, note by note, the score of every selection he played.

Master Chess Player.
A devoted chess player, he had for years entered the biggest competitions the nation over. He often played exhibitions with the nation's ranking players and, very often, won.

Donehoo played on a numbered board and his opponents had to call the move only once and his memory did the rest.

A devoted sports fan, he was an active tennis player, often rode horseback, and was one of the most active baseball fans in the city. During nearly a quarter of a century, he had attended virtually every home game of the Crackers.

His memory, which he had cultivated through the years, was phenomenal, and, at times, almost unbelievable.

He often appeared in public to exhibit his remarkable talents, and was in great demand as a guest speaker throughout the entire nation.

As coroner for 32 years, he relied almost solely on his hearing, and knew by heart, virtually every passage from the Georgia code pertaining to his work. His sightless eyes usually saw far more at a hearing than did those of most onlookers.

Through his life was far more full than that lived by most normal persons, his greatest aim had always been the advancement of those afflicted as he was.

He was largely responsible for establishing a community shop for the blind and for a class for the blind at the Calhoun Street school. He realized that none but a blind man fully comprehended the problems faced by those without eyesight and in later life the achievement of which he was most proud was that he had made life a little easier for the blind.

During the past five years, he had carried on his official duties with the aid of his wife, who was helpmate both at home and at the office, where she served as his assistant.

Seldom in bad health, he was stricken seriously ill last summer, but was believed well on the road to recovery.

He was at his office Saturday, stopped by the library before going home, and went to bed apparently in the best of health. He was fatally stricken at 3 o'clock yesterday morning and died almost instantly.

Survived by Wife.

He is survived by his second wife, whom he married four and a half years ago; two children, Peggy Donehoo and Paul Donehoo Jr.; one child by a previous marriage, Mrs. Katherine Campbell; three sisters, Mrs. B. D. Manston, and Mrs. H. B. Bankston, both of Atlanta; and Mrs. A. L. Pulliam, of Richmond, Va.; and two brothers, L. V. Donehoo, of Atlanta; and A. O. Donehoo, of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Calvary Methodist church, with the Rev. H. H. Jones and the Rev. Herman Turner officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery under the direction of Awtry & Lowndes.

U. S. Is Pleased With Halifax as Ambassador

Hull, Other Officials Hold Him in Highest Regard.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(AP)—The appointment of Viscount Halifax, British foreign minister, as the new ambassador to the United States was warmly received in administration circles tonight.

Authorized spokesmen said that Lord Halifax was eminently satisfactory as successor to the late Marquess of Lothian. Secretary Hull and other high officials were represented as having the highest regard for Lord Halifax.

His appointment was looked upon here as a sign that the British government considered the Washington post of equal importance with a cabinet portfolio.

Although Lord Halifax was closely associated with the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain during the so-called "appeasement" era of British foreign policy, those familiar with his more recent views were said to be entirely satisfied that he stands for vigorous prosecution of the war.

As foreign minister during the most critical pre-war period and also throughout the war so far, Lord Halifax was considered in diplomatic circles here to be highly qualified to interpret British policy to the United States government.

He was said also to be probably more familiar than any other British official with the full details of the informal conversations of Lord Lothian and Hull.

The tall, austere and formal Lord Halifax is a contrast in personality to Lord Lothian, whose popularity in the United States was ascribed in large measure to his informal, easy manner. Also unlike his predecessor, Lord Halifax lacks wide personal friendships and familiarity with this country.

Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. Has Best Year in History

State Agents Hold Two-Day Session Here

Emory L. Jenks, General Agent, Enthusiastic About Future.

At a two-day gathering of all Georgia agents of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, the announcement was made that this agency had closed out a most successful year, paying for the greatest volume of life business in its history.

There was a hard-fought battle between Harold Williams and Paul Burt for agency leadership, with Paul Burt eventually winning by a very small margin.

After reviewing the highlights of the year, foremost of which was the announcement of a company convention to be held at White Sulphur Springs in the summer of next year, attention was turned to making plans for 1941.

From the enthusiasm shown by the various members of the organization, this agency can look forward to substantial gains in the future.

Tribute was paid to Oliver Nix and Paul Burt, both of whom complete their twenty-fifth year of service on January 1st. Each was presented with a diamond-studded service pin, in recognition of their service to the company and to the public.

Commenting on the progress made by this agency, Emory L. Jenks, general agent, said: "No small part of this year's increased business is due to the speeding-up of business generally in the south. All indications point to a continuation of splendid business conditions, not only in the south, but throughout the country. With the federal government employing so many artisans, with work, it would seem, for everyone that wants it, there ought to be a general upkeep of good business conditions, and certainly our company is hopeful and expectant of its full quota. All the members of our company—everyone connected with it—hopes for a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year to everybody."

recognition of their service to the company and to the public.

Commenting on the progress made by this agency, Emory L. Jenks, general agent, said: "No small part of this year's increased business is due to the speeding-up of business generally in the south. All indications point to a continuation of splendid business conditions, not only in the south, but throughout the country. With the federal government employing so many artisans, with work, it would seem, for everyone that wants it, there ought to be a general upkeep of good business conditions, and certainly our company is hopeful and expectant of its full quota. All the members of our company—everyone connected with it—hopes for a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year to everybody."

Pig'n Whistles Have Your Eats For Christmas

Two Popular Places Invite Your Patronage During Holidays.

There's more to Christmas than just the enjoyment of a big turkey dinner on the day of days. There's 364 other days that folks have to eat, and many scores of them have already found that the Pig'n Whistle, at 283 Ponce de Leon avenue, is one of the most delightful places in the city to enjoy a most wholesome meal or a smaller helping of the many good things served there.

As a matter of fact, Harold T. Hagan, president of the company operating this place, has also established a similar and most delightful place at 2143 Peachtree road. At either place—not only during the Christmas holidays, but at all other times—the public will find in either excellent eating house the most delightful and wholesome of foods and the quickest and best possible service.

A favorite specialty with these Pig'n Whistle places—as well as with the patrons—is their service of barbecued chicken, planked steaks and old-fashioned barbecue dinners. However, during the Christmas days every good and appetizing dish, usually served on Christmas tables will be found at them. There will be the old true and tried turkey, with all its trimmings, and every good dish that makes a turkey dinner complete.

In addition, there is the usual delicious sandwiches which have made Pig'n Whistle famous throughout this city and country. More than a million sandwiches—the most delectable of their kind—are served every year at the popular Ponce de Leon place. At this location there is a men's grill room, offering true country club relaxation and service.

The spacious drive-in court is paved for attractive appearance and the convenience of guests, whether they choose to be served in their cars or in the several inviting rooms inside.

The main dining room is large enough to assure a comfortable table for every guest even during rush hours.

An enlarged parking lot will accommodate over 200 cars. There are 35 car-service boys to give prompt, courteous service to your car, and they endeavor to serve orders to cars within five minutes after they are given.

Drop in during the Christmas holidays and enjoy a meal—a real meal—at either Pig'n Whistle.

Buick Forces Meet Holidays With a Smile

Southern Buick, Inc., Personnel Sends Best Christmas Greetings.

Gobs of enthusiasm prevailed at Southern Buick, Inc., when a Constitution photographer visited the big plant at the corner of Spring and Harris streets Saturday morning.

The big sales force and the office personnel were expecting big things for Christmas—and likewise, were expecting big things in the sales department for the coming year.

No one had a broader smile than Hix H. Green, who came to Atlanta recently as the new president of Southern Buick, Inc., and who is much gratified at the excellent business the concern has done. He is expecting and predicting a splendid increase for the coming year.

In the picture herewith is shown the office and sales force of the company, and the reader can tell by the smiles on the faces of these Buick boys (and girls), that they are not only well pleased with the results of the past year, but that they are hoping for much bigger and better things for the year just ahead. So, it was only natural they should wish a merry Christmas to all, while expressing appreciation for past patronage.

So, remember, motorists, that this concern has a large and amply equipped service department, and much of the efforts of Mr. Green has been to make it an outstanding service place, not only for Buick owners but for owners of any and all types of cars. His determination to render the best of service in that department has appealed to Buick owners. Every improvement necessary has been made to meet this obligation to motorists.

"All Buicks embody the same high standards of quality in design and manufacture," said Mr. Green. "All Buicks offer the same engineering fundamentals—the same value per dollar. Prices vary only with size, power, richness of appointment. Thus we make certain that every Buick buyer gets the most car for his money."

"We insist, too, that all Buicks be 100 per cent Buicks. Every model has a Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight engine. Every model has Buick's own full-float coil spring suspension and 'controlled-float' silent zone body mounting, with the underlying security of Buick's famous torque tube drive. Every model has Buick-developed ball-bearing steering, tip-toe hydraulic brakes, and a parade of additional fundamentals and features."

"Motors have their choice of 22 models in five series—the special, super, century, roadmaster and limited—their choice of three power ranges—their choice of two body styles."

"And whichever model they choose they may rest assured that everything about it makes it literally a car without an equal—the best Buick yet!"

Nelms-Brown Has Gifts for Late Shoppers

Plenty of Wheel Goods at Lakewood Heights Service Station.

We know the time is short—only two days, today and tomorrow—to complete your Christmas buying, but maybe there is something in wheel goods you have not as yet been able to locate, or at least have not purchased for that boy or that girl.

In that case, drop in and see Nelms-Brown Tire and Auto Supply Company, 1671 Jonesboro road, Lakewood Heights. There you can find a selection of what you want in the way of toys and wheel goods for the kiddies, and do it on the easy-payment plan. They have a large stock to select from. Here you will find bicycles, sidewalk bikes, radios, flashlights, electric trains, fire engines, footballs, erector sets—in fact, a most complete line of holiday goods.

This popular tire and auto supply place has gone to great lengths to supply their friends and customers with many fine gifts—particularly in wheel goods. In addition to all the many gifts mentioned, the concern maintains an up-to-the-minute service station. They guarantee Shelllubrication, and assure motorists of prompt and excellent tire and battery service.

In fact, Nelms-Brown Company offers many advantages not only to those living in their immediate territory, but it will be to the advantage of anyone living anywhere in the city to drop out to their place and see the values they offer, both in their service station and in the large line of Christmas wheel and electrical goods they are offering, and take advantage of their time payment plan. The company officials wish all their patrons and friends—in fact, everyone—a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. While extending their thanks and appreciation for past patronage.

Burned Holes Easily Fixed By Reweavers

Young Ladies of Reweaving Company Send Christmas Wishes.

A right merry Christmas is expected by the deft-fingered force of young ladies who make up the reweaving and mending personnel at the Georgia Reweaving and Tailoring Company, located at 22 Cain street, between Spring street and the Henry Grady Hotel.

These young ladies have been making housewives and young men and older people happy all year by the expert manner in which they have rewoven and artistically darned torn and burned places in their clothes. Naturally, they expect to keep right on doing this excellent service for the public.

This force of young Atlanta ladies is so skilled when it comes to mending a torn or burned place in a garment—they know so well how to reweave it—that it is nearly impossible to find the place where the hole was. And they are not so choosy about what kind of garment you bring them—men's suits, coats, pants, ladies' dresses or coats—are all the same to them. The reweaving or mending job works just as well on one as the other. It makes no difference about the material—they'll take care of that.

In addition, a complete line of tailoring is handled by the reweavers, and in both this line and in their invisible reweaving, while their prices are reasonable, they guarantee all work.

John M. Cook Dies; Kin of Jefferson

Funeral Services for Sergeant W. Fred Black Jr., of Georgia Highway Patrol, who was shot to death in line of duty near Ringgold, Ga., Friday, were held at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Macon.

An honorary escort of state highway troopers accompanied the body from the state capital, where it lay in state yesterday morning, to Macon. A Macon police guard of honor met the cortege at the city limits and joined the escort. Officiating at the funeral service were the Rev. T. B. Stanford, the Rev. I. E. McKellar, the Rev. M. Means and Dr. George E. Rosser.

State troopers formed an honorary escort for the funeral procession and burial was in Riverside cemetery. Black was the first state trooper to be killed in line of duty.

Funeral Here Today for Daughter of James McAlpin.
Mrs. E. Beatrice Day, 80, a member of one of Georgia's most prominent families, died last week in Los Angeles, where she had resided recently, friends here were informed yesterday.

The former Miss Eppie McAlpin, she was the daughter of James McAlpin, of Savannah. Her early childhood was spent at the McAlpin family home, the Hermitage, one of Savannah's most famous showplaces, which recently was purchased by Henry Ford as the most perfect example of ante-bellum southern architecture.

She came to Atlanta as the bride of Alfred Gaines Chisholm, one of the city's early pioneer citizens. She later married Thomas J. Day, for many years a prominent real estate operator here.

She lived in Atlanta most of her life, with the exception of a number of years spent traveling in Europe. An artist of note, she had studied under many of the great contemporary European artists and had won a number of awards for her work.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Belle Hawkins, of Riverside, Cal.; and a niece, Mrs. Walter P. Andrews, of Daytona Beach, Fla. The body will be brought to Atlanta for graveside rites at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in Oakland cemetery. Dr. Ryland Knight will officiate and burial will be under the direction of Harry G. Poole.

Funeral Is Today For J. S. Lyons Jr.
Funeral services for the Rev. J. S. Lyons Jr., 52, of 635 Sycamore street, Decatur, will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the residence.

Dr. William V. Gardner and Dr. C. Darby Fulton, of Nashville, will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

City Traffic Accidents Toll Mounts to 37

Man Is Fatally Injured When Struck by Automobile.

The city's 1940 toll of traffic fatalities rose to 37 yesterday when police reported the death Saturday night of R. W. Lewis, 65, Negro, of 630 Greensferry street, who was fatally injured when struck by an automobile at Greensferry and Leonard streets.

The accident is the fourth fatality recorded this month and brings this year's toll of traffic deaths to nine more than the number for the entire 12 months of 1939.

Police listed the driver of the automobile as Will Davis Horton, 24, of the rear of 583 S. Lawton street. He was booked on a charge of reckless driving-accident.

ORDERS OF THE DAY to "The Great Silver Fleet"

A Message to the Flying Public from Captain Eddie Rickenbacker

For the air-transportation industry—and for the flying public, too—Uncle Sam is the “officer of the day”! He’s already issued his orders through the Priorities Board to Eastern Air Lines—and they’re no secret:

Of the 30 new Silverliners on order, 20 to be turned over to the U. S. Army by the manufacturer.

All of the new engines on order (with the exception of replacements and “spares”) to be turned over to the U. S. Army.

These orders mean that no new routes will be established during the coming year except those considered of military value.

It is significant to note, however, that while officially limiting expansion for the period of the emergency they nevertheless provide for maintaining present standards of service.

We of Eastern Air Lines are happy to make such a worthwhile contribution to national defense—proud to be of even greater service in this way to our country. As “good soldiers” we plan to carry out our orders to the very letter—and we know the flying public will do its part just as conscientiously!

Naturally, this new situation will work some hardships both ways. With the drastic change of plans which we were forced to make, literally overnight, many far-reaching, contemplated additions to service were postponed out of necessity.

But despite the sacrifices which we who operate air lines and you who fly them have been called upon to make, the skyways still remain open... and Eastern Air Lines will continue to serve its passengers—and serve them well!

For, regardless of the fact that future operations will, of course, be in accordance with our national defense policies, we are pleased to announce that we have already taken delivery of sufficient new equipment in the current year to offer approximately 100% more service this winter than last.

By anticipating our requirements well in advance, we obtained 19 new DST and DC3 Douglas Transports during 1940—under present conditions, a most welcome addition to The Great Silver Fleet.

As a result, Eastern Air Lines passengers can rest assured that all our equipment will be in absolutely safe flying condition—at all times. With the very latest model Douglas planes now in operation—and future engine replacements assured, when required—we are fortunately in an extremely favorable position to carry on “for the duration.”

When the emergency is over, we hope to fulfill our legitimate aspirations to expand our services in the interest of public necessity and convenience—to provide quickly and promptly, as we had planned to do next year, the equipment and services necessary to meet all of the demands of all the communities which we serve.

But now we earnestly solicit your cooperation:

In requesting reservations, for example, if you are asked to leave earlier or later than you contemplated, remember you’re “doing your bit” toward our national defense. May we suggest that you try to plan your air trips as far ahead as possible?

Let’s all cheerfully carry out the “orders of the day.”

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker

President and General Manager
EASTERN Air Lines

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

(Editor's Note: This is the fifteenth of a series of articles appearing every Monday and giving intimate glimpses concerning Atlanta debutantes. The Sally Fort articles will continue through the winter until the debutante season closes.)

By Sally Fort.

• • • EMMELYN CARTER, the popular debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Benjamin T. Carter, will always be remembered as the bud who inspired the most unusual parties of the 1940 social season. Affairs given in her honor have attracted nation-wide attention, with pictures appearing in Life Magazine, a distinction never before accorded an Atlanta debutante.

Life's staff of famous photographers first attended the party given by Emmelyn's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsey Hopkins Jr., and pictures appeared on several pages of a recent issue of the magazine. Last Wednesday, when Mrs. Carter Smith, another of Emmelyn's cousins, entertained in her honor, Life photographers attended again. This affair, you recall, was termed a "Builder-upper party," the guests having been served fruit juices and raw vegetables, while beauty parlor operators glorified their hair and complexions.

The lovely debutante possesses the rare faculty of winning and keeping friends, having always enjoyed unusual popularity. She graduated from Washington Seminary and attended Arlington Hall, in Washington, D. C., and Stephens College, in Columbia, Mo. At the seminary she was a member of the Phi Pi and the Pirates' Clubs and was a member of leading organizations at the other institutions. While in Washington, Emmelyn studied music appreciation, a course which inspired her hobby for collecting noted classical records. Another of her hobbies is playing badminton, and between parties she may be glimpsed frequently enjoying a game on the court at the rear of her parents' home on Rivers road.

From her lovely mother, the popular debutante inherits much of her charm and poise. She possesses soft brown hair and gray eyes fringed with long brown lashes.

Her unusual name is a combination of that of her mother, the former Miss Emmie Brannan, and of her great-aunt, Miss Lynn Brannan, a prominent resident of Oxford, Ga. Emmelyn bears the middle name of Gregg after her paternal grandmother, Mrs. William Fox Carter, the former Miss Nannette Gregg, of Marion, S. C. The debutante has one sister, Julia Carter, a popular member of the high school set.

Emmelyn's formal bow to society was made at an elaborate reception given by her mother on Thanksgiving Eve at her Rivers road home. After the debut season, Emmelyn plans to attend the School of Interior Decoration. During the afternoons when she is not playing bridge or attending post-debut parties, she will sew and knit, these being her favorite domestic hobbies.

• • • ONE OF the cleverest invitations issued recently by Atlantans were the ones received by friends of Polly Cason and Bob Parkman inviting them to the dinner given on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Homer McClatchey Jr. for the popular bride pair. Polly and Bob's marriage will be a social event taking place on Friday at the Second-Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

The original verse, composed by the hosts, printed on white paper and decorated with silver bells, read as follows:

For Polly and Bob
Who are about to leap
Off the shores of sanity
Into the deep.

The McClatcheys are dining
Friends of the pair
To toast their future
To weather that fair.

So let's get together
The 21st is the date,
At 7 in the evening we'll
Start to celebrate.

The girls will all don
Their pretty bib and tuck
But the boys, bless their hearts,
Can either dress... or dress-up.

Tenth Street apartment
Is the place, if you please,
Which can be found
With the greatest of ease.

So get yourself together,
And be ready to go,
But in the meantime,
Please advise "yes" or "no."

• • • CARS AND station wagons will wind their way to the Osgood Sanders Nursery today, for at 4 o'clock this afternoon the annual Christmas party for the tiny tots at the nursery will be held. The cars will be packed with all types of gay packages and baskets of fruit and candy, which will afford a day of happiness and joy for the children. For days members of the Sheltering Arms committee for the nursery have been gathering at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Bradley Shepherd, to label gifts for the youngsters.

Santa Claus, in the person of a well-known Atlantan, will be on hand to present the gifts, and adding a holiday aspect to the party will be the presence of the children's choir of St. Philip's Cathedral, which will sing carols.

For Fritz Orr Club.
Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Orr entertain at a skating party this morning from 10 to 12 o'clock at the Roller-drome, in honor of members of the Fritz Orr Club.

New-Year Party At Capital City.

The open house party to be given on New Year's Day at the Capital City Club, takes place from 10 to 12 o'clock. Donald Barri and his orchestra will play for the festive occasion, when members will foregather to extend good wishes for the forthcoming year.

Mr., Mrs. Jordan Keep Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Gwyn Jordan were hosts at an open house yesterday at their Virginia avenue residence, the occasion assembling 100 friends. A Christmas tree illuminated with colored electric lights beautified the living room and red roses and white narcissi formed the floral decorations.

The table in the dining room was covered with a lace cloth, and centered with silver holders, containing red candles. On either side of the centerpiece were graceful arrangements of silver pine boughs, upon which were perched silver birds. Mrs. Victor Rehark served coffee from a silver service at one end of the table. Mrs. H. L. Rogers served eggnog from a crystal bowl edged with crystal prisms, and placed at the other end.

Assisting Mr. and Mrs. Jordan in entertaining were Mrs. Van C. Wall, Mrs. T. H. Patterson, Mrs. Fred Crymes and Mrs. H. E. Benton.

Parties Planned For Miss Garland

Further complimenting Miss Dorothy Garland, prior to her marriage to Dan Johnson, will be the party at which Miss Jean Harris Johnson will entertain at her home on Oakdale road this evening.

On Thursday Mrs. N. E. Garland will take her daughter at a troupeau tea at their home on Clement drive. Climaxing the interesting series of affairs which have honored the popular bride couple will be the dinner party at which the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. Elsie Johnson will be hostess on Friday evening. The affair will be held at Mrs. Johnson's home on Oakdale road after the wedding rehearsal.

Miss Garland will become the bride of Mr. Johnson at an impressive ceremony taking place on Saturday at the Rock Springs Presbyterian church.

Party Date Changed
By Misses Bayliss.
The cocktail party at which Misses Sue and Violet Bayliss were to entertain on New Year's Day has been changed to Sunday, December 29, this affair to be one of the most colorful of the Yuletide season.

The party will take place from 5 to 7 o'clock at the home of the hostesses in the Ponce de Leon apartments, and will assemble 50 members of the married and unmarried social contingents.

Mrs. Herbert Bayliss will assist her daughters in entertaining, and a red, silver and green motif will predominate in the decorations.

Camp Fire Girls
Contribute Dolls.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings Are Hosts at Christmas Party

A huge spray of Cunninghamia, tied with silver olecloth, printed with big red roses, after the Victorian manner, adorned the front door and greeted the several hundred guests who attended the annual Christmas party given yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hastings. The spray was caught with white tulle bows, each of which was a symbol of good luck.

The alcove in the living room was framed in a swag of golden arbor vitae, beneath which was placed the coffee table. Covered with a shimmering white tulle cloth sprinkled with gold stars, the table was adorned with an antique silver epergne filled with valley lilies. Completing the appointments was a silver candelabra holding white tapers, and a silver coffee service. The mantel in the living room was centered with a gold tureen filled with golden arbor vitae and flanked on either side with miniature gold Christmas trees.

In the dining room the table was sheathed in white satin which was bordered with a seven-branched crystal candelabra holding burning white tapers. At either end of the table was a white crystal hurricane lamp, the globe banked with white stephanotis, and the base of the lamp wreathed in baby smilax caught with white camellias. Syllabub was served from silver bowls on the buffet which also held old crystal decanters of scuppernon wine.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Hastings' mother, Mrs. Ruth-erford Brown, Mesdames W. W. Anderson, Charles Winslow, Joseph Read, Laurence McCullough, Grady Poole, Eugene Brown, Dempsey Brown, Stanley Hansell, Joseph Winslow, Granter Hastings, Francis Dwyer, James Henderson, George Beattie, John Slaton Jr., A. Miss Kelley Becomes Bride Of Mr. Brannen at Chapel Rites

The picturesque chapel of the Glenn Memorial church at Emory University formed the setting yesterday afternoon for the marriage of Miss Frances Helen Kelley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ansel Kelley, of Gainesville, and Edmund Alexander Brannen, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Brannen, of Millen, which was an interesting event of the mid-winter season.

Reverend Robert L. Russell, of Griffin, officiated at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of relatives, friends and out-of-town guests, and a musical program was presented on the piano by Mrs. Luther Bridges; Mrs. John Woodstock, of Gainesville, violin; Luther Bridges Jr., soloist.

The interior of the chapel was beautifully decorated with greenery and white flowers. Centering the altar was a large urn filled with white gladioli and white chrysanthemums. On either side of the centerpiece were seven-branched cathedral candelabra entwined with English ivy and smilax. The same lovely greenery granded the altar rail.

Ushers and groomsmen were John Farmer, Russell Douglas, of Weirsdale, Fla.; Jack Register, Don Johnston, of Thomaston; Robert Gordon Ellison, of Millen, and George Stubbs, of Lakeland, Fla.

Miss Henrietta Green, maid of honor, was beautifully gowned in a model of Spanish rose taffeta fashioned with a tight basque waist and a bouffant skirt featuring godets of tiny tulle material. The sweetheart neckline was finished with short puffed sleeves edged with bands of the same material. The dress was posed over a full tarleton petticoat. She carried a shower bouquet of rubrum lilies and white roses tied with turquoise blue satin ribbon. Misses Dorothy Carter, of Gainesville, and Nell Brannen, of Millen, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids and wore gowns fashioned along lines similar to the one worn by Miss Green.

Entering with her father, Hiram Ansel Kelley, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and his cousin, Merritt Pope, who served as best man. Her dainty beauty was accentuated by her wedding gown of white duchess satin fashioned with a deep yoke of rosepoint lace, the same exquisite lace being repeated on the shoulders of the sleeves. The yoke extended to a deep square in the back and in the front was made with a sweetheart neckline. The long graceful skirt extended to form a train with lace gossamer, a picturesque effect. Her fingertip veil fell from a coronet of tulle and orange blossoms. She wore a single strand of tiny pearls, the gift of the groom, and carried a silk handkerchief belonging to her great grandmother, Mrs. M. Cleveland Jackson. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and swansons.

During the afternoon Mr. Brannen and his bride left for a wedding trip to New Orleans and other points on the gulf coast. Upon their return they will reside at 1329 Emory Circle. The bride traveled in a model of wine-colored brushed wool trimmed with beaver collar and cuffs. Her accessories were black.

Mrs. Kelley, mother of the bride, was gowned in a blue afternoon dress with her top coat matched. Her flowers were gardenias. Mrs. Brannen, mother of the groom, wore a black crepe afternoon model with matching accessories and her flowers were gardenias.

Larger and Longer-Lasting Lipsticks in Rich, Vivid Shades Are in Demand

By Winifred Ware.

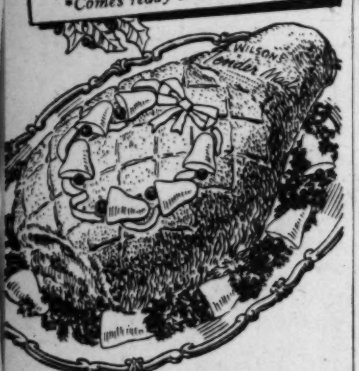

Fashion coloring this season in both cosmetics and fabrics is at its height.

When you look back at the Christmases of your childhood, what do you remember most vividly... most happily? Isn't it the tremendous trifles—things that meant so little to grown-ups, so much to you? Many of us remember the Christmas pudding, or the special way Mother had of decorating the Christmas tree. And so this week I bring you several suggestions for festive foods which I hope may become festive memories.

George Repton
Food Consultant, Wilson & Co.

Christmas Dinner
Wilson's Certified Chicken Broth
Celery curls Radish roses
WILSON'S TENDER MADE HAM with BELL'S ON
Sweet potatoes on the half shell
Young limas in cream
Avocado salad
"Christmas tree" ice cream
Glazed brazil nuts Coffee
*Comes ready to heat and serve.

TENDER MADE HAM WITH "BELL'S ON"
Easy to make. Happily remembered.

Have ham at room temperature. Heat it in a moderate oven (350 degrees), only 5 minutes per pound. Remove from oven and take off skin. Spread ham thickly with cranberry jelly and decorate it with "bells" made from pears. (See directions below.) Return to oven (450 degrees) for 20 minutes, basting frequently with the jelly. Remember only Wilson & Co. makes Tender Made Ham.

HOW TO MAKE PEAR "BELLS"
Use canned pears. Cut a slice from the bottom of each pear half, to make it resemble a bell. Place five or six of the pear "bells," cut side down, on top of the ham. Connect the "bells" with a "ribbon" made of angelique or citron. Use candied cherries for the "clappers." Baste the remainder of the pear bells with currant jelly and serve them around the ham.

If you prefer a delicious smoked ham that requires baking, specify Wilson's Certified SMOKED HAM. To be cooked 16 minutes per pound.

Open your mouth... And shut your eyes... And enjoy this tempting breakfast surprise
To get them to the table on time Christmas morning, make this iron-clad rule: "No gifts can be opened before breakfast." Use the spicy fragrance of Wilson's Certified Pure Pork Sausage, sizzling in the pan, to bring them running.

Christmas Tree Dessert
Order from your florist the sacred number of small 3-inch clay flower pots as you wish individual desserts. Line each flower pot with a paper cup. Fill the cup with ice cream or mousse. Cover with a layer of chopped nuts and candied cherries. Insert a miniature Christmas tree (clipped from your tree, decorated with bits of tinsel) in each flower pot.

Merry Christmas to you and yours... G. E.

height. Never before has color played the important part it does today in milady's wardrobe. If clothes are somber the color accent is in the cosmetics used; if the ensemble is gay and colorful, the cosmetics must be a perfect foil for them.

Lipsticks, the most conspicuous color in a woman's makeup, set the theme today larger and longer-lasting lipsticks in luscious shades are in demand. One of the favorite beauticians again has come up with a new and better lipstick. It is one and a half times as large as her usual lipstick; it has the same smoothness and delightful texture. The case is the last word in chic—it is shaped like a lipstick, the pointed top protecting the lipstick itself. The case is bright red, with a gold base and gold stripes up the sides. And more yet; to protect this cunning case from scratches, dust, etc., there is a tailored and practical cover of bright blue silk.

With lips a definite accent—as definite as your accessories—this lipstick will solve many a problem. For instance, for lips that must be accentuated, this lipstick makes it easy. The sharp, true edge is perfect for this little maneuver, and the broad side of the stick is grand for filling-in the outline as it should be. Another thing, it's a handy sized lipstick. You won't mind a little larger lipstick, because handbags are larger and your "gadgets" more easily get lost in them.

If it's something smart, lavish and exciting you want, just try one of these new lipsticks. Refills come in any color desired, as does the lipstick, which you may buy for $1.50. If you'd like to know the name and where it may be bought, call Winifred Ware at WA. 6565. Write to her at The Constitution if you don't live in Atlanta.

Avoid Errors In Your Speech

Maneuvering her toward the hotel coffee shop and passing up the smart dining room, "He DON'T ever ask me any WHERE really nice," she's thinking disappointedly.

It's true. The girl whose English is faulty never does get taken to the nicest places. A man likes to feel there's something extra special about the girl he takes for an expensive treat. Certainly she'll be of the type that says correctly "He DOESN'T," "anyWHERE."

And, though a pretty face and smart clothes may win some attention, nothing spoils their effect faster than careless speech. A slipshod "I AM your pen" or "Who was that PERSON?"

Acquiring a charming, cultured speech doesn't take half the time that many spend on "priming"—but what big dividends it pays you!

Check your errors, practice right forms; then you'll no longer have to wonder nervously whether anyone noticed your slips—"She gave it to him and I," "It's different THAN mine." You say, without having to think, "to him and ME," "different FROM."

Nor will you confuse words that sound alike, such as "allude" and "elude." It's correct to say "I alluded to a different matter," when you mean that you referred to that matter. But you say "He eluded his enemies," meaning that he escaped his enemies.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

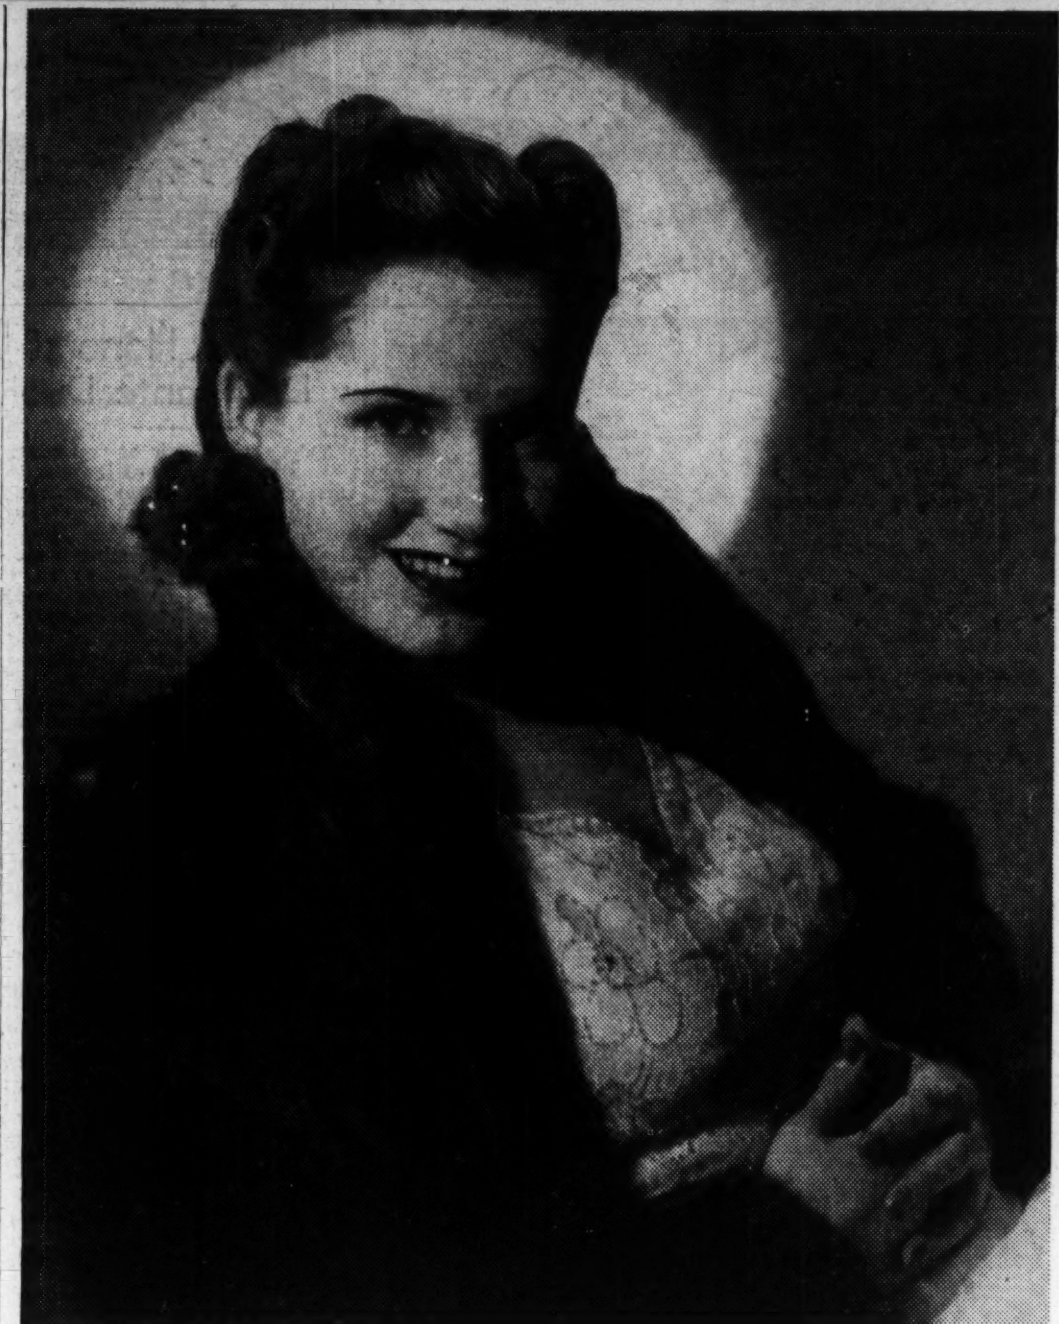

Center Panels Are Cut on Bias

By Lillian Mae.

A healthy, active youngster needs clothes with free 'n' easy lines—and Pattern 4594 by Lillian Mae is the perfect answer. Its panelled style is a double blessing, for it's wonderfully geared-to-action, with no binding or twisting, and the seams are easy-as-pie for mother to stitch. See the smart bias-cut of the center panels. The shoulders are kept trim by front and back yokes that curve all across. Let the sleeves be short or long, and if you decide upon short sleeves you might make them in cheery contrast, with the front and back yokes to match. Don't miss the bloomers or pantie included in the adorable kiddie style. Use the Sewing Instructor for speedy dressmaking!

Pattern 4594 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, short-sleeved dress, takes 2 yards 35 inch fabric; long-sleeved dress, 1 1/2 yards 54 inch fabric. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Are you too tall? Too short? Too plump? Too slim? If you are irregularly proportioned in any way, let the Lillian Mae PATTERN FOUNDATION PATTERN 4114 take the guess-work out of dressmaking. This "basic figure" pattern is fitted and adjusted to your exact measurements in tissue; then cut out in muslin for a permanent record. Pin your dress patterns to it, make the necessary changes, and the finished frock will fit with perfection. Designed for sizes 14 to 20; 32 to 50. Size 16 requires 3 3/8 yards 36 inch fabric. Price 15c. Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

In a season of fur coats, rich fabrics and vivid shades, cosmetics must be in perfect harmony. Carol Adams, new Republic player, has matched her lipstick and other cosmetics to her ensemble, which, of course, enhances her loveliness.

Thoughts of Glamour and Jewelry

By Ida Jean Kain.

During the holidays a woman's fancy turns to thoughts of glamour and jewelry—so I went to no less an authority than Paul Flato to find out about the jewelry that is most flattering to different types, and how it should be worn to look the smartest.

Mr. Flato designs jeweled baubles for the wealthiest and most beautiful women in the world, but the rules are the same whether your trinket is in a class with the Hope diamond or a modest replica.

Right off the bat he told me that brunettes show off diamonds to best advantage, that blondes look wonderful in rubies or emeralds, and that red-heads should have emeralds or sapphires. It's nice to know!

Earrings always raise a question—whether to wear them at all, and what kind—so I asked about them first. In making your choice, Mr. Flato says to keep in mind not only the shape of your face, but whether your neck is long or short, and the size of the ear lobe. With a large lobe, earrings with a long, loopy necklace—the combination will get her down! It's a much better idea to wear a clip with earrings or ear clips.

About the rings on your fingers—Not too long a ring with short fingers or it will be out of proportion to the shape of the hand and make the fingers appear stubby. With plump arms, our designer advises that bracelets should be loose, about one and one-half inches larger than the wrist. If the arms are thin, the bracelet should be fairly wide and not so loose as to make the wrists appear thinner. When you want to wear a lot of bracelets, wear them on the same arm. With a pair, however, one may be worn on each wrist—as the women in India do.

The "nevers" stressed by Mr. Flato are: Never to load yourself down with all your jewelry at once, or to wear a clip and a necklace at the same time even though they are mates. The Duchess of Windsor, he declares, is the perfect example of good taste in wearing jewelry. She wears it as magnificently as any woman in the world, and never overdoes it.

The newest thing is a set of five clips, all different sizes. Three may be worn as a necklace, one on the cuff, and one on the turban. It's a trick that is both smart and conservative. Styles in engagement and wedding rings are changing with the idea of "a perfect diamond for the pure bride." Mr. Flato, who believes that red is the color of true love, has designed a wedding ring set with tiny ruby hearts. And the engagement ring is set with a large ruby heart, with a three-quarter carat diamond in the center.

Dog collars and diamond stomachers are out of date. The dowagers now wear a necklace of pearls or other gems, wrapped close about the throat a couple of times, and the rest of the strand hanging in a loop. The woman with a large bosom can wear a conspicuous pin, but it should be placed high on the dress.

"And how about the working girl?" I asked finally. "The working girl?" queried Mr. Flato in surprise. "Well, if she can have just one piece of jewelry, it should be a clip, for that is more versatile than any other piece.

Hollywood, Five Years Ago

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 22.—Five years ago on Christmas Eve, Claudette Colbert eloped with Dr. Joel Pressman. On the same day, a lesser event occurred. A limp, bedraggled object dropped from the skies—me—to write a daily Hollywood column for the North American Newspaper Alliance. Let's go back and see how, if at all, the Hollywood of five years ago differs from the Hollywood of today.

The ten best box-office champions of 1935 were—in their order—Shirley Temple, the late Will Rogers, Clark Gable, Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers (as a team), Joan Crawford, Claudette Colbert, Dick Powell, Wallace Beery, Joe E. Brown, and James Cagney.

At least two of the above will be in the 1940 line-up. Gable and Cagney. Ginger Rogers might also make it. Shirley Temple, no. As for the rest—Joan Crawford is hanging on to her filmland place by a long eye-lash; ditto Joe E. Brown. Dick Powell is not as popular as he was. Wallace Beery, who starred in films 30 years ago, is apparently going on forever. Fred Astaire is good for another year, anyway (more if he dances again with Ginger).

When I first came to Hollywood, Bette Davis won the academy award (for "Dangerous"). She probably will snitch another "Oscar" this year (for "The Letter"). John Ford was named the best director of 1935 (for "The Informer"). He may get it again this year, either for "Grapes of Wrath" or "The Long Voyage Home." Dudley Nichols is another of the 1935 bunch ("Informer") who may repeat this year. But I don't think Victor McLaglen will. "The Informer" was the high point in McLaglen's film career. His pictures lately have been few and non-important.

Some of the other 1935 events sound a more incongruous note. Freddie Bartholomew, for instance, after his outstanding portrayal in "David Copperfield," was awarded the part of Greta Garbo's son in "Anna Karenina." Freddie is now nearly six feet tall, and a magnifying glass is needed to spot his current career. But Garbo, like the river, goes on forever—albeit a little more slowly.

"If the name is unfamiliar, it's because you didn't see 'Society Doctor,' starring Chester Morris and Virginia Bruce," wrote a film critic in summing up the discoveries of 1935. The "unfamiliar name" was Robert Taylor. . . . In the same year Cesar Romero was hailed as "a real Latin from Manhattan." I still don't know why Romero does not get bigger and better parts. He is a good actor.

Opera stars were in great cinematic demand when I first came to Hollywood. Lily Pons was making a film, "I Dream Too Much." But the dream was a nightmare. Grace Moore was doing all right, following "One Night of Love" with "Love Me Forever." Gladys Swarthout screen-debuted in "Rose of the Rancho" with John Boles. All of them have flown the Hollywood coop. And, while we are talking about singers, here's a funny one: Looking back at my screen notes of five years ago, John Carroll is hailed as a "singing-actor find." I'd completely forgotten that John was a singer.

Screen discoveries of 1935—Winifred Shaw in "Broadway Hostess" with Phil Regan. Miss Shaw faded away from films shortly afterward. . . . Errol Flynn received his first speaking role in "Captain Blood." . . . Betty Grable received a lot of space as a "college girl siren." . . . Bobby Bren collected complimentary—and other—adjectives. . . . A young lady named Rita Cansino appeared in a little number titled "Paddy O'Day." You know her today as Rita Hayworth, and she's going up the film ladder.

In 1935, Myrna Loy "struck for more pay." She was receiving $1,500 a week; she wanted $3,000. While her studio bosses were thinking it over, they gave her role in "Rendezvous" (with William Powell) to newcomer Rosalind Russell.

"Among the more happily married couples of 1935," wrote a film fan reporter, "are Joan Bennett-Gene Markey; Helen Ineson-Fred Perry; Margaret Sullivan-William Wyler." Exactly 50 per cent of them are still happily married, but to other mates. . . . Maurice Chevalier left Hollywood for France reputedly because Ann Sothern did not reciprocate his burning admiration. . . . But here's something that sounds familiar: John Barrymore was divorced in 1935—by Dolores Costello. Is it going to be a continuous five-year-plan, John? . . . Joel McCrea and Frances Dee were rated "Hollywood's happiest couple." They still are.

Names that figured in my early columns and are now absent—Mae West, Marion Davies, Astrid Allwyn, James Dunn, Ruby Keeler, Jack Haley, Rosemary Ames, Madge Evans, Karen Morley, Adrienne Ames, Ricardo Cortez, Elissa Landi, Nancy Carroll, Marion Marsh, Elizabeth Allen, Richard Cromwell, Gertrude Michael and Margo.

The big Hollywood excitement of late 1935 and early 1936 was the Mary Astor diary case. Running it a close second was the Ann Harding-Harry Bannister child custody battle. . . . George Raft was on suspension at Paramount for refusing to do "The Princess Comes Across." He was recently suspended by Warners for refusing to do "The Sea Wolf."

Five years ago Garbo was going back to Sweden—forever. (She must be so glad she stayed in Hollywood). . . . Five years ago Deanna Durbin was fired from Metro because that studio couldn't possibly see her as a film actress.

Today's Charm Tip.
For Boys: Don't bend over backward to be a "tough guy" to establish your male superiority over the well-mannered youth you may deem sissy. Your Dad is a gentleman without being either sissy or "tough guy."

It's grand for early spring or for those going south now, is this chiffon dinner dress of butterfly print on a white background, fragile and languishing looking with its round neckline, long sleeves, fullness and width at sides

Women Could Change Shade of Hose They Wear

By Dr. William Brady.

For the benefit of readers who do not brook intrusion into their business or their leisure by even the most intriguing cross-word puzzles, crinose means hairy.

Of course the legs of man or woman are normally covered with hair. But the hairs on the legs of most women are so fine that they are apparent only when closely scrutinized.

That's where the trouble begins for a good many girls who become lachrymose about their crinose legs. They discover by critical inspection the practically unnoticeable covering of down or fine hair over the outer surfaces of thighs and legs and begin using depilatories, safety razor or other means to remove the hair, which, if they had enough sense to let alone would never be noticed by anyone else.

Here arises the question whether shaving by mechanical or chemical means or cutting or clipping or epilating (plucking) normal growth of hair or beard or superfluous hair on areas where it is not wanted, stimulates growth of the hair and so causes more rapid growth or growth of heavier hair. The answer to this question is a matter of opinion. There seems to be little or no actual evidence that removal of hair at intervals causes faster or heavier growth. On the contrary there is some evidence that persistent removal of hair by chemical solution (depilatory), by plucking or by pumice stone eventually makes the hairs become softer and less apparent.

Two methods of destroying (not merely removing) hairs, namely X-ray and electrolysis, are entirely out of the question so far as crinose legs are concerned—impracticable except for destroying localized tufts of coarse hairs in a small area of skin, such as a hairy mole.

If a woman must choose between wearing stockings of darker hue than the ladies of the chorus are wearing, if any, this season or resorting to mechanical or chemical shave, she will do as she likes regardless of any advice offered by an old geezer who looks at legs even if they are not perfect.

WORDS OF WISDOM.
As there is much beast and some devil in man, so is there some angel and some God in him. The beast and the devil may be conquered, but in this life never destroyed.—Coleridge.

Best Christmas Gift!

THE best Christmas gift for your family would be a safe and sane America!

The best protection you possibly can give your children on this tense Christmas Day of 1940 would be complete independence and freedom from the perils of international political intrigue against the peace and security of their country and yours.

We are giving away our national substance, exactly as we gave it away in 1917-1918. And to what purpose?

Soon we may be at total war again unless you spring into immediate action in defense of all the traditions of a free America, as handed down to us by such men as Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Patrick Henry, Abraham Lincoln and a host of great patriots. They never could have dreamed that those things to which they dedicated their lives might one day be sacrificed to satisfy the lust for political and economic power of the governments and men who are the real makers of great wars.

Help the No Foreign War Committee NOW in its fight, to the last ditch, to prevent the interventionists of 1940 from bringing upon the world a calamity such as it never has known before, by dragging the greatest nation of them all down to the wreckage which inevitably follows total war.

Please send your contributions at once to our Treasurer, Robert A. Lancaster. Every penny of contributions received by us will be acknowledged and accurately recorded. One of the best firms of certified public accountants in the U. S. A. will render an accounting of our receipts and disbursements, weekly.

Until now the money and credit of the newspaper with which I am identified, out in Iowa, has financed this entire campaign to keep the United States out of war, at the same time completely preserving the honor, dignity, and power which are inherently America's. We Iowans are not millionaires, and we are thinking only of our country.

We cannot much longer compete alone against the resources supporting the William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies. Our funds will be inadequate unless there is substantial aid, at once, from patriotic Americans. Advertisements such as this cost money—thousands of dollars—when inserted in many newspapers, and this one is being published from coast to coast.

No people comprehend better than Americans the solemn and impressive significance of the Christmas Day. If you would act in conformance to the purpose for which died the Man whose birth is to be universally celebrated on December 25, please make your contribution to Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men by immediately helping the No Foreign War Committee, either at New York City or Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Unnecessary delay in our receipt of adequate funds for this campaign to preserve the America we love easily might cause the loss of this battle.

VERNE MARSHALL, Chairman.

Write or wire President Roosevelt, your Senators and Representatives, that you are expecting them, as your governmental servants, to keep this country out of any foreign war.

Yankee Scout Sees Army Camps as New Source of Baseball Talent

Johnny Nee To Seek Stars On New Beat

Selective Service Act Is Blessing in Disguise, Veteran Believes.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Johnny Nee, baseball scout for the New York Yankees, predicted today that the selective service act which may upset the star-studded lineups of major league teams will prove a blessing in disguise.

"While the draft may take some of the name players," said Nee, "their presence on Army camps may mean the development of young players who otherwise would never give baseball a second thought."

The veteran ivory hunter said a general lack of physical fitness among young men has made baseball talent rather scarce in recent years.

HARDENS BOYS. "Army life is going to harden these boys and make them anxious to compete in sports," he said. "Every camp will have its baseball team and if a big league player happens to be on hand to help instruct, the opportunity and incentive for making good will be considerable. Some of these boys ought to develop into good players."

Nee recalled that many a young star emerged from Army camps after the World War, and added, "Don't forget that Dizzy Dean got his start at Fort Sam Houston, Texas."

He said he would visit Army camps in his southern territory, and observed "I'm not taking any chances on missing another Dean who might pop up in one of them."

PITCHERS SCARCE. As a tip to youngsters who would like to make their Army camp a stepping stone to the big leagues, Nee said pitchers, catchers and first basemen "are the fellows we are after most. Right now they're scarce as hen's teeth."

The Yankee scout spends the off-season putting around his garden here and enjoying an occasional round of golf. The Yankees will do their spring training here.

"It will be the quietest we've had in a long, long time," he declared, and added that a promising bunch of recruits would be on hand to try for places on the squad.

Morehouse Five Opens January 5

With 20 candidates for the varsity team out for practice and with two of last year's lettermen back, Morehouse College faces a strenuous 16-game basketball season, which begins Saturday night, January 5.

Only Pinky Haines and Albert Grant are left from last year's varsity. Another letterman, William Myles, has returned to school after a two-year layoff.

Among the new men showing promise are Clarence Moss, Clayton Yates, William Ashmore and Dink MacMath.

Moccasins Play Tech October 4

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The University of Chattanooga announced its 1941 schedule today, which will send the Moccasins to the Dixie Conference against Georgia Tech of the Southeastern.

Four Dixie foes—Mississippi College, Spring Hill, Southwestern and Mercer—are listed on the nine-game schedule. It follows:

September 4, Georgia Tech, Atlanta; 11, Mississippi College, here; 18, open; 25, Southwestern, here; November 1, Spring Hill, here; 8, Centre, Danville; 15, Sewanee, here; 22, Mercer, here.

Science Vs. Fact Deke Houlgate, who is one of those football rating fellows, placed California 63rd in the nation in his final calculations. And it just goes to show, men, the futility of rating tables. What's calculus or slide rules got to do with a football team's ability, anyway?

California, playing in a tough league and after a series of injuries, bounced back to peak form and lost to Stanford, Rose Bowl bound, by only 13 to 7. True enough, the Bears met a staggering setback at the start of the season when Tom Harmon and company, of Michigan won, 40 to 0.

Thereafter, the Bears lost three games by a total of 13 points. They lost to Washington, 7-6; Oregon State, 19-13; and Stanford, 13-7. The Bears defeated St. Mary's, 9-6; U. C. L. A., 9-7; Southern Cal., 20-7, and Oregon, 14-6. With any breaks the Golden Bears, Tech's opponents this Saturday at Grant field, might have beaten Stanford. And somehow it seems odd that Stanford should be in the Rose Bowl and California, according to the Houlgate rating, doesn't belong in the same league.

Coast observers rank the Golden Bears as one of the greatest "snake-bit" teams in the Pacific sector. Which, of course, they are. The injury factor doesn't show up in a rating table. The Bears probably sank as low as they did in the Houlgate table because they had been given a fine rating in advance of the season. And then when injuries slowed them, the bottom ultimately dropped out of their ranking.

There were injuries at the Flats, which played havoc with the Engineers in a tough schedule. The coaching staff couldn't put a full-strength team on the field for any game. And, since there were no breathers after Howard, a strong little team, the situation got no better as the weeks rolled by.

Saturday, however, Tech for the first time will be in top shape; California was ready for Stanford, as pointed out, lost by a narrow margin to the coast's Rose Bowl representative.

One of Many Houlgate is only one of several rating people who have found the uncertainty of modern football, week by week, a thing that not even common sense can figure out.

There is simply no pattern to follow any more. Most any team is apt to beat any other. That is, when they are reasonably matched.

So rating tables aren't consistent. Sometimes they almost border on the ridiculous.

Our old friend, Paul Williamson, had quite a year trying to justify some of the things he had supposed would happen ere the season even started.

It seems that when a fellow rates a team as he thinks it ought to be, and the team turns out otherwise, then the man doing the rating can't consistently drop or raise it too drastically.

And so many a team that crosses up the rater is seldom put in the proper place.

Rating tables may be all right. They may give readers food for thought and a splendid basis for argument. But in so far as being accurate—so far as giving a true picture of national football—they don't come very close.

You could match some of their low-rating teams against some of the upper strata and have a whale of a football game on any Saturday.

Waiting Game Ranger Carroll Wright, of the Altamaha-Black swamp and Slide-way district, has the right idea about deer hunting.

"A young man shouldn't hunt deer. It requires too much standing around in one place. A man of great patience makes the only good deer hunter. Like golf, deer hunting is an old man's game," he insists.

Well, I don't know about golf being an old man's game—although it seems to make old men of aspiring youths—but I do know about the patience required for deer hunting. For didn't I spend eight hours on a rainy stand one day and then the next day, after an hour and a half, walk off a dry stand and miss a big buck by less than 20 minutes?

The uncertainty of deer hunting is what makes it a top sport, however. You never know when a buck might come your way. Then, too, unless you are sharp-eyed, you may be looking right at a buck in the underbrush and not see him. Their coloring blends so well with the brush that it is possible to be looking right at one and never see him.

But it is a game of patient waiting. It is even

Vols Have Nine Days To Labor For Bowl Test

Neyland Afraid Longer Training Period Would Make Team Stale.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Recess is over for Tennessee's Volunteers.

The boys put aside the frivolities of life tomorrow and begin concentrating on the nine-day job of preparing for that football business New Year's Day with the Boston College Eagles in the Sugar Bowl.

While the other bowl teams have been toiling for days getting ready for their engagements, Major Bob Neyland let his lads take a vacation from the gridiron to the accompaniment of a good deal of head shaking by the pool-room experts.

They figure the Major is drawing the line thin to give his athletes only nine days in which to prepare for the Eagles, who have been practicing steadily.

"In the past two years," Neyland said, "our boys have been to two bowl games and worked right on through December preparing for the contest."

"This year I was afraid they would get fed up on football and for this reason I gave them three weeks away from the game."

Goodreault's, Showing Cheers Boston College.

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss., Dec. 22.—(UP)—Boston College rested today before starting a final week of stiff workouts for the Sugar Bowl game against Tennessee.

Bad news brewed for Tennessee in the continued improvement of All-American End Gene Goodreault, who was expected to start at New Orleans on New Year's Day. In early warmups here, Goodreault was able to sprint the length of the field despite his knee brace.

Mississippi State Goes Back To Work.

STARKVILLE, Miss., Dec. 22.—(UP)—The Maroons of Mississippi State tomorrow resume practice for the Orange Bowl game with Georgetown University.

The Maroons had been drilling for several days when Head Coach Allyn McKeen gave them a five-day rest last week. He feared the players would become overtrained and tired of the contest before making the jaunt to Miami.

McKeen reported the players in excellent condition.

Fordham Resumes Workouts Today.

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Fordham Coach Jim Crowley gave his football players the week-end off before beginning final workouts here for their Cotton Bowl game in Dallas against the Texas Aggies. The Rams reassembled at 2 p. m., tomorrow for a heavy session, and another is scheduled for Tuesday. Signal drill and limbering up will be the extent of Wednesday's workout prior to leaving Christmas night. Going via St. Louis, the Rams will not stop for practice en route and will take their next workout after arrival in Dallas Friday morning.

Hoyas Face Passing And Punting Drills.

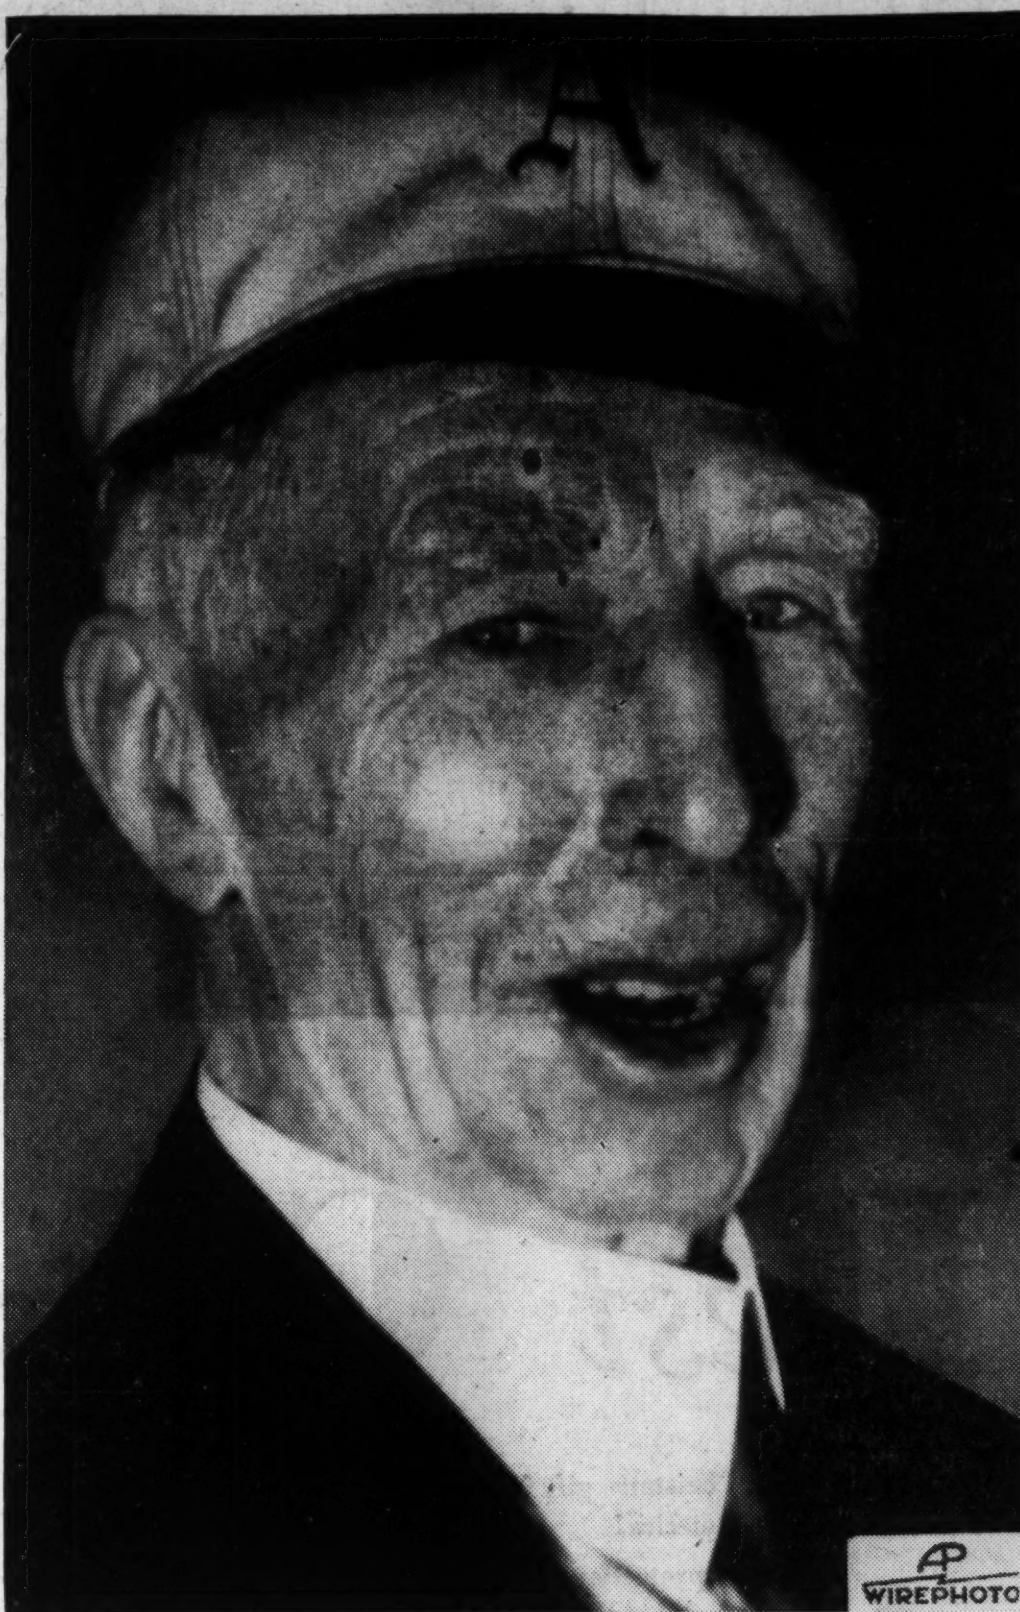

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Two more passing and punting drills were scheduled today by Georgetown Coach Jack Hagerty before his club leaves Christmas Day for Miami to play in the Orange Bowl against Mississippi State. The Hoyas have a special blackboard session scheduled in the morning to iron out some bad spots encountered in Saturday's intra-squad scrimmage.

Nashville Parties Bid for Lookouts

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 22.—(AP)—The Tennessean said tonight it had been reliably informed that "negotiations for purchase of the Chattanooga baseball franchise by a Nashville syndicate have been set in motion."

An announcement on the deal can be expected around January 1, the paper said.

"It was stated by one of the interested Nashville parties that a Chattanooga business executive had contacted the local group in regards to the purchase of the club," the story read.

CONNIE MACK STILL HOPES FOR A WINNER—PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.—Connie Mack (above), who likes to "keep a-going," celebrates his seventy-eighth birthday Monday with thoughts of retirement ever further from his mind. Born Cornelius McGillicuddy in 1862, he has become synonymous with the best in baseball. Life in baseball is exciting to Connie and he is looking ahead with enthusiasm toward the day when perhaps he will have another team to match his championship clubs of 1910-14 and 1929-31 eras.

Snead Beats Cuban In $5,000 Bet Match

HAVANA, Dec. 22.—(UP)—Slammin' Sam Snead, of West Virginia, defeated Rufino Gonzalez, Cuban professional, 137 to 142, today in Cuba's biggest betting golf match over the Havana Country Club.

Shooting sub-par golf on both the morning and afternoon rounds of their 36-hole medal match, Snead won $5,000 for Thomas Shevlin, wealthy New Yorker, who had made that wager with Thorwald Sanchez, Cuban sportsman and backer of Gonzalez.

Snead registered a 69 for the morning round, three under par, and a 68 in the afternoon, four under par. Meanwhile, Gonzalez, who is known as the "John Montague" of Cuba, had a brace of 71s.

In addition to the $5,000 bet between Sanchez and Shevlin, there had been heavy wagering throughout Havana on this match, with United States tourists giving Snead robust support against the Cuban home pro. Hence the largest gallery in Cuban golf history followed the contestants over the soggy course that had been slowed up by yesterday's heavy rain.

On the morning's out nine, Snead shot three birdies, on the second, eighth and ninth holes, meanwhile taking a bogey five on the fifth. This gave him a 35, two under par. Meanwhile, Gonzalez was also playing sub-par, taking a 36 after birdies on the fourth and seventh and a bogey five on the sixth.

Coming home, Snead got a bogey five on the 12th, but registered birdies on the 15th and 18th for a 34, one under par, and a total of 69 for the 6,300-yard course. Gonzalez meanwhile got an even par 35, with birdies on the 10th and 15th and bogies on could beat any golfer in the world over the Havana Country Club course. Gonzalez, 32 years old and a former caddy, is the assistant professional at that club. He has been playing as a pro for 20 years, 15 at the Havana club.

Snead is understood to have received $1,000 of Shevlin's winnings. Had he lost, he would have got only $500. When Sanchez made the $5,000 bet with Shevlin, the wealthy Cuban expected it to be a personal wager, but so many of the Gonzalez admirers wanted to share the bet, Sanchez let them in on it. Hence his personal loss was not great.

Columbus Five Defeats J. P. C. On Court Here

Progressives Unable To Stop Joe Murrow, Losing, 45-30.

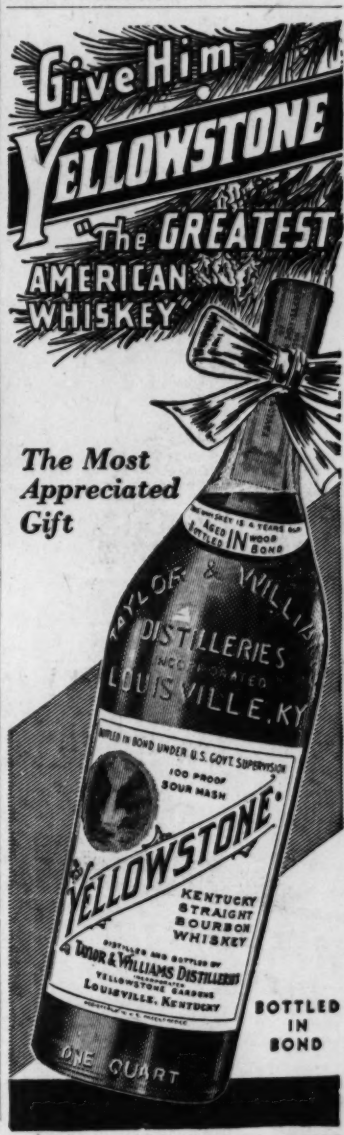

CHADWICK, of Columbus, last night accomplished what no team was able to do all last year; in fact, what very few teams have been able to do in the past six or seven years. They defeated J. P. C., and did it quite convincingly, 45 to 30.

Big Joe Murrow, six-foot-eight center, was practically unstoppable under the basket, and his teammates—"Red" Copeland, Herbert Besser, Jack Bushman and Morris Shapiro—were right in there to throw him high passes or drop in field goals themselves when the occasion presented.

Ginsberg and Minsk showed up best for the Progressives, and Browdy did excellent work in holding down Murrow. Greenberg played a great floor game, and had a tough assignment in checking Copeland.

The J. P. C. Cubs defeated Ahepa, 39 to 23, in a preliminary.

Blue-Gray Game Gives 'Little All-Americans' Chance to Snatch Glory

Unknown Aces Have Starred In Past Battles

Jones, Goodnight, Cotton and Parker Hope To Follow Up.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 22.—(AP)—Followers of minor league football stars are warming up for another hot argument over the prowess of their proteges against the aces of the big-time college circuits.

The North-South classic here has furnished them with some potent debating material. In fact, if the "little college" gridders steal the show again Saturday they can point for a third time and say: "We told you so."

Joel Hitt, an end from Mississippi College; Gaylon Smith, a ripper back from Southwestern (Memphis), and Eddie Dunn, a Miami (Fla.) halfback, not only held their own, but actually outshone such southern stars as Dick Todd, of Texas A. & M.; Bo Russell, of Auburn, and Marvin Franklin, of Vanderbilt, in the first Blue and Gray game.

For the North, in the inaugural, Lou Tomasetti, of Bucknell, came in for plaudits along with John Chickerno, of Pittsburgh; Mike Kabalo, of Ohio State, and Bob Hask, of Indiana.

Only big-timers made up the invading Yankee squad a year ago, but little Ken Heineman, of the Texas School of Mines, put on a passing and running show that few will forget. His display brought the South a 33-to-20 victory, and

GIFT OF THE GODS.

A magic genie came to me and said,
"Pick out the greatest gift the world can know;
Unending wealth, a crown upon your head,
Fame, gold, or rank, against all winds that blow,
Or what you will before the flame burns low."

I thought it over by the open grate,
Beneath the white and scarlet berries strung,
Before I answered at the twilight gate,
Thinking of oh, so many songs unsung—
"Bring me one dream I knew when I was young."

The Four-Bowl Limb.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 22.—From numerous quarters of the football map your correspondent has been invited to crawl out on the end of a swaying limb and thereby act as target for the javelin tossers. He has been asked to name the best of the bowl games, not so much from the spectacle involved and the gate receipts, but strictly from an angle of football values.

Which should be the best game of the four at Pasadena, Dallas, New Orleans and Miami?

In the first place, it requires no expert prophetic twist to say that these happen to be the best bowl games yet arranged. They take in eight of the best teams in the country—not the eight best, with Minnesota, Michigan and Northwestern on the sidelines—but eight teams as good as any you could name.

The three best teams in the east—Boston College, Fordham and Georgetown—are meeting the three best teams of the south and the southwest—Tennessee, Mississippi State and Texas A. and M. And the two best teams west of the Mississippi meet at Pasadena, where Stanford and Nebraska put on their $400,000 show.

The Eight-Team Record.

Through the last season these eight teams have played over 70 games wherein they suffered only four defeats.

Three of them—Stanford, Boston College and Tennessee—were undefeated. Mississippi State was tied, but unbeaten. Georgetown, Nebraska, Fordham and Texas A. and M. each lost a single game and in each case by a narrow margin—Georgetown by only a point, Fordham by three points, the others by a touchdown.

Their records stand above .900. And you might remember, as good as Minnesota was, the close call the Gophers had against Washington, Northwestern, Michigan and Ohio State, where each game hung in the balance of chance and fate.

A Few Comparisons.

It is my belief that you could take all eight of these teams, change or scramble up all the elicited praise from Co-Coaches Carl Snavely, of Cornell, and Lynn Waldorf, of Northwestern, who handled the opposing "Blues." The "Grays" Saturday will trot out far-from-unheralded men from the minor loops. They're Boyce Jones, Mississippi College tackle; Owen Goodnight, Hardin-Simmons back; Russell Cotton, Texas Mines back and former teammate of Heineman's, and Dave Parker, Hardin-Simmons end.

Both Goodnight and Jones copied "Little All-America" honors. Countering these the North will have Wittenburg's ace fullback, John Kostyo.

They may or may not grab the sports page streamers the morning of December 29 from such luminaries as Paul Severin and Jim Lalanne, of North Carolina, Cornell's Walter Matusczak and Illinois' Captain Tom Riggs, but one thing is certain, the "big names" will have to hustle.

bowl assignments, and still get four rousing contests. All four will be sellouts, which has nothing to do with the angle suggested.

On the day I saw them play, Boston College and Georgetown, with their tremendous, active lines, and their fast backs, plus their versatility on attack, were certainly as good as any other team I saw all year—not barring Michigan and Harmon.

I saw Fordham run up 41 points against North Carolina and Arkansas, who were good enough to beat Duke and Mississippi.

I saw most of the present 1940 Tennessee squad play twice last fall—I mean Foxx, Butler, Suftridge, Molinsky, Shires, Warren and several others.

I haven't seen Stanford, Nebraska, Mississippi State or Texas A. and M. in action, but their records and the reports of rival coaches and alert scouts give us a good line on their ability to play high-class football.

Mixing 'Em Up.

As far as a robust football engagement goes, it would be about the same if Stanford were meeting Texas A. and M.—Tennessee were facing Georgetown—Mississippi State were tackling Boston College and Fordham were facing Nebraska.

Any one of the eight teams named would be a stout competitor for any of the others.

I'm not quite sure the bulk of the country correctly estimates the strength of Boston College and Georgetown. Both are much stronger than so many people know. They had thirteen men drafted by the professionals, which ought to be a two-team record—if it isn't. I think it is. And most of these, with their weight, speed and experience, will make good.

Either, or both, may be beaten. But it will take quite a chunk of high-class football to turn the trick if they take their southern invasions as seriously as they should.

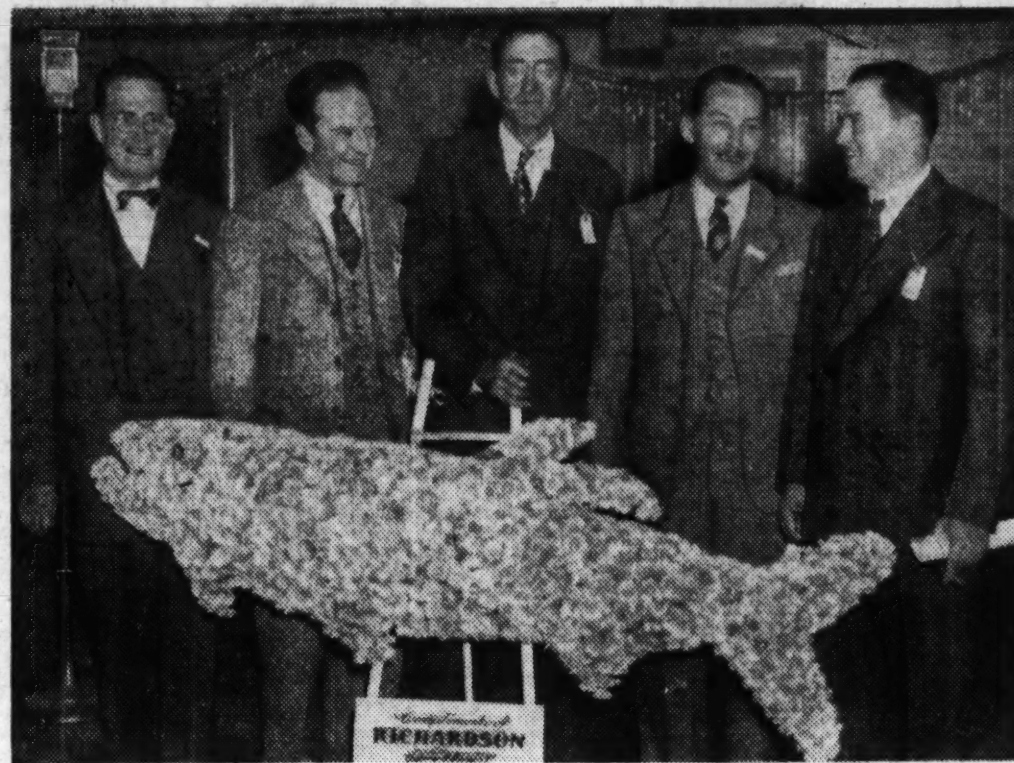

You might be surprised to know how many bowl games are decided by condition and mental attitudes. Those teams merely looking for a holiday jaunt usually get it squarely under either the right or left ear, especially facing some opponent that is out to win.

The Top Game.

With no intention of ducking the issue, we see no reason for crawling out on the end of a limb that has either cherries nor blossoms to pick. To forecast the best or the most thrilling game from this bowl list would be only a rank guess.

Tennessee and Boston College give the Sugar Bowl the only two unbeaten teams on the list. Both are powerful—offensively and defensively. But there is always the chance their defensive strength might overpower each attack. I don't believe this will happen. But anything can happen in a football game.

"SALT OF THE EARTH"—The Old Salt, weekly radio fishing commentator, held his annual fish fry at the Shriners' Country Club in Savannah Friday. Prizes were awarded winners in various divisions of the Old Salt's angling contest along the Georgia coastal area. Here are some of the notables attending who made short talks: Left to right: Benjy Williams, radio announcer for the Old Salt; Congressman Hugh Peterson, of Alley, Ga.; John B. Wilson, secretary of state; E. M. Lipscomb (the Old Salt himself), and Charlie Elliott, director of the state division of wildlife. The floral tarpon was donated by leading Savannah florists.

Old Salt Helped Salt Cash In Fishing Camp Barrels

By JOHN MARTIN.

For a whale of a time Georgia's coastal waters have yielded thousands of large catches of fish. There is no better winter and summer trout fishing territory in the world than the salt marsh rivers of the state's lower country and nowhere do the channel bass fight as long.

For years only the native fishermen of the coast, and an occasional straggler from the inland enjoyed the salt water advantages off the Georgia mainland.

Things are different now and hundreds of visitors, with little regard for a dollar and a lot of emphasis on fish, have found a new sporting ground. Next year there will be more, all because a fisherman with an idea got busy last spring and inaugurated a nightly program on Radio Station WTC in Savannah.

Through "The Old Salt" and his 15-minute program fishing camp operators along the coast have salted cash in their fish barrels and are building bigger and tighter boats for next season.

INCREASED PROFITS. Scores of these fellows who make a living renting boats and selling bait and supplying guides came to The Old Salt's fish fry last week at the Shriners' Club in Savannah, and without a single exception, told of larger profits and better business "because The Old Salt plugged for us and kept our salty water churning over the air."

The Sunday outdoors page of The Constitution likewise was cited "as a contributing factor to better business and increased interest in coastal fishing." The page was recognized as a great asset to hunting and fishing in Georgia, inasmuch as it has put much emphasis on conservation and restoration.

It developed at the big fry that The Old Salt was two guys. Ben Williams was the "voice" and E. M. Lipscomb was the "ghost." Lipscomb, who writes a column for Outdoor Georgia called "The Old Salt Sez," originated the character and digs up the news, features and facts that entertain the largest mob of listeners any program in that section draws to the radio.

The non-commercial program will spread its coverage next year, beginning April 1, and camp owners are looking to increased business with a "fish on the Georgia coast" song reaching into wider areas.

HARDY FISHERMAN

Arthur Hardy, of Pine Harbor, was talking about winter trout (weakfish) fishing off the Georgia coast. Hardy learned to swim with the aid of a trout's dorsal fin and he would be ashamed to tell how many pounds of fish he's taken off Pine Harbor.

"Three of us caught nearly 1,000 pounds of trout in half a day on a slip cork rig. They weighed from one to five pounds. We could do it again. Show me another place like that anywhere, and I'll eat 'em all alive."

During The Old Salt's party champion fishermen of the coast told stories of how they landed the big ones. They received awards of prizes totaling over $1,000 in tackle and other angling equipment.

Among the principal speakers at the jamboree were Congressman Hugh Peterson, Charlie Elliott, John B. Wilson and Jack Troy.

First place awards, supplied here to show the species and sizes of fish taken in Georgia salt waters, were as follows:

Tarpon (22 pounds), Charles Hood, Waycross; shark (9 feet, one inch), Julian A. Space Jr., Savannah; channel bass (32 pounds), William S. Harris, Savannah; winter trout (16 pounds, 8 ounces), Dr. Alexander Paderevski, Savannah; Dorchester (10 pounds), Mrs. Sale Flinn, Dorchester; flounder (18 pounds, 4 ounces), C. J. Schauss, Savannah; croaker (2 pounds, 12 ounces), H. A. Bigelow, Wilmington Island; sea drum, (123 pounds), H. W. Simmons, Bluffton, S. C.; whiting (2 pounds, 6 ounces), R. Smith, Savannah; yellowtail (15 ounces), J. B. Rollins, Savannah; catfish (2 pounds), Mrs. Agnes Harrison, Savannah.

In the fresh water division prizes were awarded as follows: Largemouth black bass (9 pounds, 5 ounces), W. J. Hall, Savannah; striped bass (22 pounds), L. R. Reddick, Savannah; jackfish (5 pounds, 4 ounces), Ulin F. Stewart, Savannah; bream (1 pound, 3 ounces), Louis Woods, Pineola; channel cat (5 pounds, 4 ounces), E. P. Scott, Springfield.
